EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

ROBT. GARRETT, ex-President of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, behaves so peculiarly that he is believed to be insane.

ELECTION day is not far off. It is important to have a full Republican vote. Do not permit carelessness to give a victory to Democratic opponents.

IT is gratifying to notice that the number of native-born American citizens who are enlisted in the anti-Sabbath movements is very small.

NINA VAN ZANDT, who makes love to Anarchist Spies, accomplishes what she is anxious for. She gets plenty of notoriety through the newspapers and that is all she wants.

THE Signal Service is making efforts to improve its weather prognostications. There is room for a vast amount of improvement before it attains the respectability of the goose bone.

MR. M. P. HANDY has retired from his editorial connection with the Philadelphia News. He is said to be a very "handy" man to have about the editorial part of a printing office.

WE notice that the Watchman is firing ammunition at unusually big game—some of its bullets last week being aimed at a paper named Sunday Grit and a gentleman named Mr. Alem Brittain Steele.

COL. GRANT, the Republican nominee in New York for Secretary of State, follows the example of his distinguished father is making short speeches. The longest one he ever made filled only twenty-eight lines of average type.

IF the counsel for the Anarchists succeeds in having the United States Supreme Court decide that the reading of newspapers incapacitates a man from serving on the jury their clients are saved, as nobody but Anarchists could then serve on juries.

NOW that Premier Norquay, of Manitoba, has secured sufficient money to complete the provincial railway which has been the bone of contention between the province and the Dominion Government, it will be interesting to watch the latter attempt to frighten the former to death. Should Sir John Macdonald determine to proceed to greater extremes, the spectacle presented will be even more interesting.

AT length the better element of people in the large cities is aroused against the impertinant claims of the Liberty League, composed of foreigners, and in Philadelphia last Sunday nearly all the ministers preached against it. This is the League which has promised the Democratic State candidates the votes of its members, in exchange for the repeal of Sunday laws which the League considers obnoxious.

"Republicanize the South."

The speech of General Woodford before the Young Republican Club of Lancaster, Wednesday evening, remarks the Philadelphia Press, was distinguished by the same features which mark all the public productions of that gentleman. No one has a better right to speak for the Republican party than has General Woodford. He has been prominent in its councils almost from the birth of the organization, and has contributed in no small measures to its victories in the past. He is acquainted with its history and achievements as are few men now on the active stage of life. While the Republican party was struggling to save the nation from dismemberment, to ward off financial bankruptcy and to make sure of the results of the war General Woodford's voice and counsel were always at its service, and when he recounts the record of that splendid period in the nation's history he can point to results which he himself aided in bringing about.

But proud as General Woodford is of the achievement of a political organization which can rightly claim to be "the party of great moral ideas," he would not see it rest supinely upon its record. "The war is ended," he says, "and the Republican party must press forward to new duties and new responsibilities. It is not enough for a party to have a good record behind it," and the Republican party must make its future worthy of its past by grappling with the great questions that are yet to be solved. And one of the duties now imposed upon it, General Woodford believes, is to Republicanize the South. In this way, he points out, lie future victories and conquests for the party, and in this direction it should march. With Protection inscribed on its banners the Republican party should move upon the solid Democratic South and wrest its control from a party which has misled and impoverished it in the past and which offers it no better prospect in the future.

The elections of last year and this year in the South and the tone of the newspapers in that section prove that the present is a propitious time for such a movement as General Woodford advocates. The Republican majority of 20,000 in the congressional elections of last November in Virginia, the meagre Democratic plurality of a few hundred in West Virginia, the strong Independent sentiment shown in North Carolina, the greatly reduced Democratic majority in Kentucky and the extra exertions necessary to keep Tennessee in the Democratic column all indicate that the unquestioned supremacy of the Democracy in the Southern states is at an end. The revolt against Free Trade in Alabama and Georgia and the certainty that the tariff question is to play a prominent part in the senatorial elections in those states are also significant. All these signs beckon the Republican party to renewed efforts in the South. The field is ready for it, and the seed planted now is certain to bear an abundant harvest in the future. The interests of at least half the states in the South are bound up in the maintenance of the Republican policy of Protection, and it only needs the same effort that is put forth in the North to range most, if not all, of them under the Republican standard.

Age of Sheep.

The age of sheep may be known by examining the front teeth. They are eight in number, and appear during the first year; all are small in size. In the second year the two middle ones fall out, and their place is supplied by two new teeth, which are easily distinguished by being of a large size. In the third year two other small teeth, one from each side, drop out, and are replaced by two larger ones, so that there are now four large teeth in the middle and four pointed ones on each side. In the fourth year the large teeth are six in number, and only two small ones remain, one at each end of the ranges. In the fifth year the remaining small teeth are lost and all of the front teeth are large. In the sixth year all begin to be worn, and in the seventh, sometimes sooner, some fall out. It will be seen by the above that there is no difficulty in telling the age of sheep at least up to the seventh year.

HON. LEONARD RHONE, Worthy Master of the State Grange, P. of H., is reported as saying that he does not think it advisable to call an extra session of the Legislature. Here are his words as reported in the Farmer's Friend: "I see but little gain in an extra session, as it would cost the State probably $500,000 and then result in no real good. The Commission should sit and deliberate for another year and revise our whole revenue system, from the townships and boroughs up to the affairs of State."

A Needed Reform.

Ever since the present administration came into power there has been great complaint about the inefficient postal service. The papers all over the country have voiced the complaint of the people and tried as well as they could to correct the evil. For a time we condoned the fault, thinking that the new Democratic officials would, in time, learn their business. Cleveland has said," A public office is a public trust," and we had a right to conclude that he would act up to his own precept; but three years have past, the people have with remarkable patience endured the blundering incapacity of Democratic postmasters, until patience has almost ceased to be a virtue. A short time ago the firm of McCalmont & Co., of this place, forwarded an order to Cratz & Staker, seedsmen of Toledo, Ohio. The letter was sent on the 8th of October. Not hearing from them, on the 17th Mr. Shortlidge, their business manager, wrote again by postal card. The letter reached its destination on the 17th, at noon, and the card the same evening, being nine days on the road. Again a letter was addressed to McCalmont & Co., from Thomas E. Proctor, of Penfield, Clearfield Co., Pa., enclosing check in payment of account. The letter was addressed to Bellefonte as plain as though it had been printed, but it found its way into the Tyrone office, was received by S. McCamant & Co., of that place, and opened by them before the mistake was noticed, then returned to post-office and forwarded to its destination. We have had repeated complaints from our Philadelphia subscribers of delay in receiving their papers and sometimes that they miss altogether. The subscribers to the DAILY NEWS at Loveville complain that the papers do not reach them always the same day they are printed, although they are invariably placed in the office here, and we know are sent out from here in season to reach the subscribers in time. They say that sometimes the papers put in—say on Monday, and those on Tuesday reach them in the same mail. Many of the subscribers to the Fountain—especially those in the lower end of Penns Valley—have often complained that their papers were two and sometimes three days reaching them, when they should reach their destination the same day they are printed. Now, all this blundering is a damage to all men who do business. It is such a gross violation of a "public trust" that it should receive the immediate attention of the authorities. If such service as this grows out of Democratic reform the less we have of such reform the better. We always knew the democratic party was very conservative; that it was slow to catch on to new ideas—and now we have yet to find out how long it takes the average Democrat to learn how to run a post office. Perhaps they could acquire knowledge of how to run a bar much quicker.

Causeless Alarm.

Some apprehension is said to be felt in Chicago because of the proximity of the day of execution of the Chicago Anarchists. It is said that fears are entertained that there will be an outbreak to prevent the execution, and for this reason such advice is given as—to remove all the other prisoners from the jail, to conduct the execution as quietly as possible, &c.

It seems to us that this alarm on the part of the people and this advice given by cranks is entirely unreasonable and foolish. Surely, there is not a numerous part of the population of that city who do not agree that the carrying out of the law in the execution of these men is proper. They are wholesale murderers and would destroy people by thousands if they had opportunity. They are indiscriminate in their selection of victims and, and like the leaders of the Commune in France, would slay the innocent as well as the guilty. Their desire seems to be to see blood flow and to cause sorrow and trouble.

We do not for a moment associate such creatures with honest workingmen. No one knows better than ourselves that honest labor is oppressed, but these men who make war upon capital are the laborer's worst enemies

THE Watchman is badly frightened for the safety of the Democratic county ticket this fall, and frantically advises Democrats not to scratch a name from it. The Democrats, however, will probably do as they please. They are tired of being under the thumb of the editor of the Watchman.

You Cannot Err.

The duty of every voter in Centre county in the coming election is plain. The issue between the two important parties is well defined. There is no need for any one to err.

So often we have heard would be independent voters say that there is no real issue now between the Democratic and Republican parties. This, of course, has not been so at any time, because the issues between the parties have at all times been of consequence. In every question the Republican party has been on the right side and the Democrats have allied themselves to error as naturally as ducks take to water. As we look at it, the difference in sentiment entertained by the members of the two parties regarding the Rebellion and what that war accomplished is of itself a mark of wide distinction, and we cannot conceive how anyone who considers himself patriotic or loyal can ally himself with Democracy.

Do not, we ask, more than one half the Democrats still believe that one State has a right to secede from the government and form a separate power? Is not that doctrine pernicious and destructive? And was not the war partly the result of an effort to put that doctrine in practice? To all these we can reply—"Yes."

Earnestly, we believe in a tariff which will prevent the importation from other countries of productions which can come in competition with what we produce in this country. Perhaps you say this is in the interest of corporations and the result is to keep up the price of the necessaries of life. We do not deny this. But the fact to us is perfectly evident that the more work that is done here at the highest prices and the more fruits of that work produced the greater must our prosperity be, and even if the price of living is higher the means of procuring that price is easier in a much larger degree. Then there are other resultant benefits from the theory of protection which we cannot now enumerate.

But there are people, who, as we said before, continue to urge that there are no issues between the two parties. They say further that the question between temperance and intemperance dwarfs all others, and unless the Republican party advocates prohibition they must withdraw from it and bring about its defeat. This year that issue is squarely before such people. The liquor element has unitedly allied itself with the Democrats, promising them money and votes. This is the rule in all parts of the State. The willingness of the Republican party to give the Prohibitionists their rights has influenced all whisky men to withdraw from it.

This being so, gives the Republican party the right to the vote of every true temperance man. As if to emphasize this fact, the line is drawn yet stronger in the local contest for the associate judgeship in Centre county. The Republicans chose for that nomination a gentleman who has been prominently connected all his life with temperance work. In brief, his life has been one of unsullied purity and probity. He is a favorite with all classes. When Daniel Rhoads as a business man employed men he was loved and admired by them. Men who worked for Mr. Rhoads speak of him as the embodiment of kindness. He is now one of the associate judges of this court by appointment and asks his fellow citizens to ratify this appointment by their votes. It is not much for a man like him to ask. He has spent a great part of his life in work which elevated and helped mankind. He has never received any honors from his fellow citizens. Courtesy and kindness will bring many votes to his support, and as a judge he will continue to be a credit to the county.

We believe that Mr. Grove, his opponent, is an honest man. But, unfortunately, that is all we can say of him. There are scores of citizens in the county whom we believe to be honest that are certainly not fitted to be associate judges. You say that the position confers only an empty honor; that associate judges are mere figure heads. Unfortunately, this is too often true, and because mere negative men are chosen. Mr. Rhoads is a positive man—positive for good. Mr. Grove is not the intellectual equal of Mr. Rhoads; he has not been to an equal extent the friend of the suffering and distressed. There is everything to lead us to believe that he is more selfish, looking out for No. 1 and caring for others only as he wants their votes.

But the principal objection to him in this campaign is his virtual sell-out to the liquor men. Temperance men cannot see a man elevated to the position who calculates beforehand to use his influence against the ends and aims for which they are striving. Those who know Mr. Grove and see the tendency of this campaign must see just what it means. And all men who desire to vote for the cause of morality and purity should unite on Mr. Rhoads as the "people's candidate," because his candidacy is in the interest of the people.

Catholics at the Polls.

At a meeting of St. John the Evangelists's T. A. B. Society, of Philadelphia, held on Sunday evening in the basement of the church, Francis Tracy Tobin offered the following resolutions, which, after full discussion, were unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That we, the St. John the Evangelist's T. A. B. Society, in accordance with the spirit of the resolution passed by the T. A. B. societies of this city and State during the struggle for a High License law last Winter, pledge ourselves to oppose the license of any brewer or wholesale or retail liquor dealer who contributed funds for the defeat of said law or who now contributes funds for the corruption of the ballot.

"The organization of brewers and other liquor leagues for the purpose of influencing legislation and the election was never before as brazen and as public as it is to-day. They have even established political headquarters and assessed their membership in amounts which mean nothing less than the raising of large corruption funds for the avowed purpose of repealing the High License law, and, in doing this, not only threaten the law, but the good of society.

"The prerequisites of a license granted by the courts to sell malt or spirituous liquors, either wholesale or retail, are good citizenship and moral character. In our view anyone who embarks in such an organization, or who contributes money to it, establishes the fact that he is not a good citizen and is not possessed of that good moral character made essential to a license, and upon evidence of such conduct not only the members of this society, but all good citizens, should be invited to join in remonstrance against the licensing of any member or contributor to the leagues now attempting the corrupt control of politics.

"Resolved That we earnestly call the attention of the T. A. B. and other temperance societies throughout the city and State to this subject, and invoke their aid to the end that there may be speedy and general resistance to the political action of the leagues referred to."

THE Press has already had reason to call attention to the fact that there are many Germans in Philadelphia who have no sympathy with the Personal Liberty League and their lawless and demoralizing demand that the liquor saloons shall be open for business on Sunday. Naturally these self respecting and order loving citizens are anxious to take the most effective means of separating themselves from any identity with the Personal Liberty Socialists, and to this end two delegations yesterday called at the headquarters of the Republican State Committee to give their assurance in person that there are many thousands of Germans who do not propose to be bullied by Karl Kuhl and his personal Liberty Socialists into a policy of lawlessness alike ruinous to the dignity of citizenship and the security of peace and property. The German who values his home and his family can no more afford to follow the lead of Karl Kuhl than the citizen of any other nativity can.—Philadelphia Press.

FORTUNE seldom comes to a person so suddenly as to the Waco printer who is said to have fallen heir to a fortune of $1,000,000. In this connection the interesting question naturally arises as to what use he will make of his money. More people, probably, can stand adversity or a modest competency than can bear up under a flood of prosperity. But notwithstanding this the populace is almost unanimous in its willingness to stagger along through life under such a load.

IT is said Mr. John Noll has concluded that his goose is about Cooke-d.

On the premises of a Pasadena (Cal.) gentleman there is a well over 109 feet deep, that was dug entirely by the gentleman's son, less than 20, simply as a means of muscular development. The young man would go down the well, fill the bucket with earth, emerge, and haul it up.

Baldwin, the aeronaut, made an ascension from Quincy, Ill., last week, his balloon descending on the farm of Thos. Boothby, near Perry. Boothby seized the balloon and locked it up in his barn, declaring that he will not give it up until he is compensated for the time his men lost in watching it.

An Atlanta man named Fonte went into a barber shop one afternoon recently to be shaved and the barber called his attention to a slight swelling on the inside of his neck. It kept growing and before he left the chair was as big as a hen's egg. The swelling looks like a very big wen and is very hard.

Poetry.

AT GETTYSBURG.

BY FRANK COWAN.

(Dr. Frank Cowan, of Greensburg, Westmoreland county, Pa., the author of the following and the reader of it at the camp fire of the Grand Army of the Republic, Fifth Avenue Music Hall, Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 4, 1887, is a son of Hon. Edgar A. Cowan, who was U. S. Senator from Pennsylvania from 1861 to 1867, and was well known to many of the older readers of this paper. Dr. Frank Cowan is about 50 years of age, a great scholar, devoted to his books, is an extensive traveler and has a most entertaining way of telling of his travels. He is a poet of no mean order.)

With low bent head and wonder-lighted eyes,
The soldier listened to the story of
My wayward wand'ring twice around the world,
And therein of the strange, the wonderful,
And the sublime of every sea and land,
It was my good or evil hap to make
A part of my experience evermore:
A myriad of match-like memories,
Betimes to kindle feelings of delight,
Inflame the passions of my bosom, and
Illume the mystic midnight of my mind
Now, with weird shimmering auroral dreams,
Anon, with flashing incandescent thoughts—
The lightning-scissored silhouettes of God
Within the storm-rack of the intellect!

My tale of travel told, the veteran,
Tumultuously moved, a moment stood
With heaving bosom and with trembling lip;
Then, grasping my right hand, and glancing from
My eyes to Heaven as his gathered thoughts
Found utterance in jesture, look, and speech,
Pronounced these words with solemn emphasis:
"My friend! But to have been where you have been,
And to have seen what you have seen, by God!
I would have been a louse upon your head!"

This happened hence a year or more. Since then
The soldier and his speech have haunted me;
And ever and anon I find myself
Confronting him in fancy with a change
Of parts upon the world-wid stage of life—
I having heard his story, and he mine—
Assuming his emotion as my own—
Appropriating gesture, look, and speech—
"My friend! But to have been where you have been,
And to have seen what you have seen, by God!
I would have been a louse upon your head!"

And why? The soldier wore a coat of blue,
And fought among the brave at Gettysburg!
While I—O cruel fate!—was far away!
While I, a son of Pennsylvania!
Was not among the first to stand or fall
Before the foe, beneath my mother's roof
And on her holy hearth, at Gettysburg!
Unworthy I—the soldier's peer in age!
Ignoble I—the soldier's peer in strength!
Benothinged I—a vagabond beyond
The pale of immortality for aye!

O soldier of the country of my birth!
All would I give that I have gained within
The worlds of wonder of the New and Old,
Had I thy history within my heart!
That I might thrill as I have never yet,
While I read what is written there in blood:
I faced my country's foes at Gettysburg!
I fired a shot—I rove a bayonet—
I clubbed an empty gun at Gettysburg—
Or, glory of all glories of the earth!
I bore the shot and shell bespattered flag—
I bore the Stars and Stripes at Gettysburg!

Aye! veteran of the United States!
All would I give that haply I have gained—
Alone in eldritch Austral as wilds,
Or mingling with the millions of Cathay;
Agape in London's inwalled wonder worlds,
Or musing on the moonlit Amazon;

Dreaming the dream of marble of the Taj,
Or thinking the eternal thoughts of Rome;

Scaling Corea's wall against the world,
Or stayed by the storms of Patagonian wastes;

Amid Himalaya's heaven-kissing heights,
Or Halemaumau's hell ignited fires;
Elate before a listening Emperor,
Or awed at the Anointed Holy Tomb!—
All! all! had I as thou swell'd with my voice
The shouts of victory at Gettysburg!
All! all! could I as thou now say in truth,
I share the glory of IMMORTAL MEADE!

Our Story Teller.

TOOK IT ALL BACK.

Mrs. Birch was in the wide farm kitchen, making pies, when Tom came in whistling merrily. Tom was her nephew, of whom she was wont to say:

"Going to college never spoiled Tom one bit. He is just the same manly and obliging fellow he was before he went to Harvard, and never turns up his nose at the quiet country ways of his old home."

"Here you are, auntie!" he cried, depositing a basket on the table—"eggs, butter and beans! The mammy will be over after dinner to help you. How many new boarders to-day?"

"Only one, Tom. That makes four in all. The last one is a friend of Miss Elmore's—teacher in the same school."

Tom whistled but it was a signal of dismay, not a cheery tune.

"Now, Tom," his aunt pleaded, "perhaps she will not be so dreadful as you imagine."

Tom looked doubtful.

"A friend of Miss Elmore's, and a Yankee school-marm, and not dreadful! Oh, auntie!"

"You saucy boy! Don't you want to get me an armful of wood? Sarah is down at the dairy."

The armful of wood deposited beside the stove, and several other little "chores" cheerfully performed, Tom started homeward again, the clear musical whistle once more ringing out in a brisk tune. He was a handsome fellow, Thomas Traxall, of Woodhaven, the owner of a splendid farm, where his widowed mother reigned as a queen. He had gone to college to please her, studied faithfully, graduated honorably, and added the polish society gives to the inborn courtesy of a true gentleman. But he did not care to study a profession, or establish himself in a city business, loving the free out-door life on the farm, and using his brains to direct the hands of the men he employed. He was a rich man in the small country place, and his mother had servants to do her bidding, and, as her neighbors said, half enviously, "never need wash so much as a tea-cup unless she'd a mind to."

"Mother," Tom said, entering the cozy room where the old lady was sewing, "send Jerry over to Aunt Sarah's for awhile: will you, and tell him to do any little work she wants done. I'm not going over."

"Why, Tom," said his mother, "whatever is the matter?"

Her fleeting face caught the reflection of a suppressed merriment in his, and she laughed, softly but heartily.

"Miss Elmore?" she said, presently.

"No, but a friend she has sent. Come, mamma, put away your work; I'm going to drive you over to the Falls until dinner time."

The Falls, a favorite resort of Woodhaven people, was a branch of the river two miles away, and fell over great rocks in a wood, where the murmur of the leaves was drowned in the rush and roar of the cataract.

As the carryall drove up, Tom's eyes espied a stranger seated upon the trunk of a fallen tree, watching the tumbling, foaming waters. The noise of their approach was lost in the soft grass and roar of the waters, and the lady did not look up as the carryall drew near.

So Tom had a fair chance to see a face whose beauty of coloring and features had the charms of youth as well. A crown of short gold curls was half hidden under a large shade hat, pushed back to leave exposed a small oval face, with large violet eyes and delicate features. The figure was small and daintily clad in a gray traveling suit, and the tiny foot, half hidden by the gray skirts, wore a stout walking boot. She started as the man leaped from his seat to fasten the horse, but, seeing the sweet-faced old lady Tom was carefully assisting, sank back on her seat again.

"Good morning," said Mrs. Traxall.

"Good morning," the stranger answered, in a low, sweet voice. "Please tell me are you from Woodhaven?"

"Yes."

"Then you can direct me there. I started from the D— station to walk over to Woodhaven. I have walked until I am tired, and am resting here."

"But you must have made the wrong turning at Smith's Farm."

"Where the roads fork?"

"Yes. You took the one to the left. Well, you must be tired, But we can drive you back, that's one comfort."

"Oh, thank you! But—have you the room?"

"Seats for four, and we are but two. Where are you stopping at Woodhaven?"

"I am to board at Mrs. Birch's."

"My sister's!"

"Oh, is she? That is nice. My name is Browne—Fanny Browne."

"And mine is Traxall! This is my son!"

And Tom, who had not lost one word of this conversation, came forward to be formally introduced.

There was much pleasant, easy chat as he lay on the grass at his mother's feet, where his eyes could rest upon the lovely face that grew animated with conversation and gradually lost the weary look it had worn at first. They talked of books, of scenery, of Boston, and Miss Browne was frankly pleasant.

"I guess, Tom, you will have to go over to your Aunt Sarah's, after all," said Mrs. Traxall, with merry eyes. "She depends on Tom," she explained, "to show her boarders the beauties of Woodhaven, and Tom—"

"Mother!" cried Tom.

"Well, you see," said Mrs. Traxall, not heeding the imploring look, "Sarah's got a Yankee school-marm coming there to board, and Tom's afraid of her."

"Yes, afraid," said Tom, stoutly. "There was one here last summer, and it took me all winter to recover from the shock she gave me! She wore spectacles, and she used to glare through them in a manner that sent cold, creeping shudders all over me. She knew everything—absolutely everything! I had a faint idea that I was not utterly ignorant, but she convinced me of my error. Her name was Medusa Elmore."

"The whistle, Tom!" his mother cried. "Time to drive home. You must dine with us to-day, Miss Browne, and Tom will show you the way to Sarah's. When you know it be sure you come over it often to see me."

"Indeed, I will!" was the quick reply.

And but that the solid ground does not wear out there would have been danger to the path "across lots" that led from Mrs. Birch's to Tom Traxall's. Did Fanny Browne's dainty feet fail to trip across one way, Tom's long stride was sure to go the other, and the stride was shortened to an easier gait when the two were slowly walking to and fro.

Mrs. Traxall was delighted to have a young visitor who could talk of something besides cows and poultry, and actually proposed to Tom to buy a piano, to accompany to accompany the sweet voice that sang all her favorite ballads for them. Tom nodded, but waited.

For Tom, who had not escaped some flirtations in his college life, was yet heartwhole until those summer walks and drives with Fanny Browne stole away the entire love he had never before given. She was the brightest, sweetest woman he had ever met, and his mother was found of her, an added attraction to Tom.

"For," thought he, loyally, "I never could marry a woman who would make home uncomfortable for the mammy."

It was at the Falls, where he had first seen her, that Tom ventured to speak his love. Not all at once, cautious Tom, but gently feeling his way by asking her if she could live her life in so quiet a place as Woodhaven, after the bustle of a city.

"But I have only lived in Boston one year," she said. "I was born in just such a quiet home as yours, but my parents died when I was a child, and the minister gave me a home and an education until I was nineteen. Then I went to Boston to earn my own living. I had a cousin there who got me a situation.

There was a suspicious quiver in her voice as, with downcast eyes, she added;

"It was in a school, and her name—my cousin's—is Medusa Elmore."

"I take it all back," cried Tom. "I am ready to swear by Venus and Cupid that their lives nothing in this world so lovely, so charming as a Yankee schoolmarm, and the one desire of my life is to win one for my own. Fanny, forgive my fatal ignorance and take pity on my heart."

"Well, well," Mrs. Traxall said, "just to think, Tom, that you have been dodging Sarah's boarders all summer for fear of meeting Miss Elmore's friend. It is too funny."

But Tom could laugh with his mother, for the love he coveted is all his own; and his wife Fanny rules the farm-house, and resigns, without a sigh, the delights of city life and the dignity of a school-marm.

An Emperor's Tram Car.

The magnificent horse car being built at Green Island, New York, for Dom Pedro's private use on the Royal road, Brazil, has been completed and will be shipped from the works this week. The outside is of mahogany, with golden ornamentations. The windows are of French plate glass. There are four on each side. The deck or top is circular, and in the centre is a dome of cathedral glass, upon which are a large crown and the Brazilian coat-of-arms. The platforms and gears are not remarkable. The decorations are in French renaissance. The flooring is in white ash, of narrow stripes and is covered with a Westminister carpet of blue ground and elaborate figure. There are to be stationary safas in opposite corners, upholstered in gold figured, heavy, raw silk of the finest manufacture. The window curtains and lambrequins are of the same material. Two movable mahogany arm chairs are also upholstered in the richest silk. Two willow arm chairs and a mahogany stand complete the furniture.

In one corner is a neat nickel water cooler on which is engraved a crown. The ceiling decoration is done in French renaissance. The ground is a light olive. The dragon, scrolls and other work are elaborately executed. A gold-plated lamp within the dome contains four burners, an electric wire also runs into the dome for use in case a dynamo is placed beneath the car. The gear and platforms will be taken off and the car will be boxed and shipped by rail to New York, to be taken by the next steamer to Rio de Janeiro.

It Didn't Improve with Age.

Caller (in newspaper office)—Twenty years ago I wrote a poem.

Editor—Yes.

I brought it to this office, and you refused to publish it.

Very likely.

I remember that I mentally put you down for a confounded idiot, who didn't know enough to ache when hurt.

Naturally.

I looked that poem over again the other day, and have come to see you about it.

Aha!

I have come to say that if I looked as green twenty years ago as that poem proves me to have been, I want to thank you because you didn't cut me up and feed me to the cows. Good day.

The editor drew a long chalk mark under the table. It was the first case in all his experience in which twenty years had begotten sense enough to understand that it is sometimes necessary to be cruel to be kind.

The Secret of Longevity.

A little way beyond the ancient church at Holderness is a brick residence, the front of which is half hidden by one of those monster elms that are the pride of the northern states, and beneath its shade I saw yesterday an old man who is passing his ninety-fifth year, sitting comfortably in a great arm-chair. My wife told me that his aunt had recently died, aged one hundred and five; and, curious to know if there was any special reason for such longevity, I made inquiries. "No," said my informant; "only they were almost always out of doors and lived a quiet life."

Yet in that single sentence lay a greater philosophy that he dreamed of, a sounder precept than he knew. To keep out-of-doors and avoid worry is a maxim that, if followed, would close a majority of our hospitals, which, I regret to say, have a greater number of occupants with each succeeding year.

Married men are apt to forget that if it had not been for their mothers-in law they would not have their wives.

Were These Women Taught in Vain!

Wellesley College is about to lose its president, Dr. Alice J. Freeman, by marriage, and Vassar is about to suffer a like loss through the marriage of Miss Priscilla H. Braislin, its professor of mathematics. Dr. Freeman is to marry a Harvard professor, and Miss Braislin a wealthy manufacturer of Holyoke, Mass. But the new relations to which one or the other goes are of less importance than the circumstance that the place of each must be filled, and that each has chosen to cut short a brilliant professional career by marriage

We shall hear as in like cases before, of the folly of educating women to be college presidents and professors to end their days as wives and mothers; but the folly really brought to light by this comment is the current and common conception of the value of an education. By nearly everyone an education is held valuable, not for what it causes men and women to be, but for what it enables them to do. But, in a broader sense, practical, visible, tangible results are the chief gauge applied to the fruits of education.

The other and larger part is what it does in and for a man or a woman in their very self. It is not what each does, but what each is, which measures loss or gain in the work done by college training. To look on the work of educating and training two most brilliant woman as lost because they step aside from conspicuous places of daily action to "human nuture's daily use" is to misconceive and misinterpret all the relations of men and women, to measure by an essentially low, sordid, narrow and vulgar standard the true influence and higher duty of men and women. We have all missed the true teachings and deeper demands of life as it should be, if we do not know and understand that education does its best work at short range in the immediate and personal work of life. There are its highest triumphs won, and there also are its best rewards.

It is but a contracted and we fear somewhat masculine view of life which does not see that what the world really needs is not more Wellesley presidents or Vassar professors, but more highly educated woman carrying into the daily life of the household and the ordinary work of society the education, the training, the attainments and the spirit which these gifted women have brought to the posts they are to surrender.

Nor, we venture to say without fear of contradiction, has any educated woman called to the training of her children found that she was too much, but rather too little, educated for the high work placed before her. Her utmost training, her widest information and her highest cultivation prove none of them beyond or above her daily needs.

Practice.

From the Texas Siftings.

A Texas parent had a son who took piano lessons at Professor Zweibeer's house, but was supposed to do his practicing on the piano at home. The parent had a suspicion that the youth did not practice much. One day he said:

"Tommy, do you practice regularly on the piano when I am down town?"

"Yes, pa."

"Every day?"

"Yes, pa."

"How long did you practice yesterday?"

"Two hours."

"And to-day?"

"Three hours."

"I am glad to hear that you practice so regularly."

"Yes, pa."

"And the next time you practice be sure you unlock the piano. Here is the key. I locked the piano and put the key in my pocket a week ago."

Relics of a Famous Battle.

While excavating a grave in the old graveyard at Stony Creek yesterday the skeletons of three British soldiers, who were killed in the battle of Stony Creek, were discovered. One of them was evidently that of a British cavalry officer, as the remains of a blue tunic of fine material, with buff facing and trimmed with heavy gold bullion, were found upon it, while on the buttons were the crown and wreath, the figure of a galloping horse and the number eight in large numerals, surrounded by the motto, "Honi soit qui maly pense." The skeletons were found about two feet from the surface, and it was evident that the grave diggers had struck into one of the long trenches in which the dead were buried after the battle.

Says old Allen Thompson: "When I am in the woods I never use a compass; in fact, I don't need any. There are three sure ways that I have for finding the points of the compass. You will notice that three-fourths of the moss on trees grows on the north side; the heaviest boughs on spruce trees are always on the south side; and, thirdly, the topmost twig of every uninjured hemlock tips to the east. You just remember these things and you'll never get lost."

How Cleveland Makes His Speeches.

Chicago Tribune.

The President—Dan, what's the next town?

Dan—Skedunk.

The President (wearily)—What are the facts connected with the early settlement of the place, &c?

Dan (consulting letters, gazetteers, and cyclopædias)—Settled in 1857 by a colony from New Jersey. Name Skedunk means the breaking up a hard winter. First President of the Town Board was the Hon. Tellus Y. Knott. Big fire in 1862 burned down the woolen mill and two livery stables. Principal industry, the making of fly nets. Population 2,760

The President (standing on rear platform of a car a few minutes later)—I am rejoiced, Mr. Mayor and fellow citizens of this thriving young metropolis, to have an opportunity of meeting you and expressing the admiration I have long felt for the city of Skedunk. If my memory serves me rightly, this beautiful spot was first settled in 1857 by a company of far-seeing men from the eastern portion of our great republic. It was was in the glorious spring time, and the poetical name of Skedunk, which means early spring, was bestowed upon the live and thrifty village, which even then gave promise of a glorious future. I am no stranger to the fame of the Hon. Tellus Y. Knott, one of your most distinguished early citizens, and I shall never forget how the great heart of the country throbbed in sympathy with you when, in 1861, a considerable portion of your fair city was destroyed by fire. But time fails me to speak of your bright prospects for the future, of the useful industry—the manufacture of fly nets—which has done so much to bring the population of Skedunk up to nearly 6,000. [Wild cheering]. Move on, fellow citizens, in the path of honor, usefulness and prosperity; stand up in the majesty of your manhood, uphold the institutions of your country, and the name of Skedunk will be glorious through all future ages. Fellow citizens, I bid you a most kindly farewell. [Train moves off amid the frantic cheers of the entire population.]

We see it stated that a man has invented a chair that can be adjusted to 800 different positions. It is designed, says an exchange, for a boy to sit in when he goes to church.

A Belfast gentleman and wife were riding out one day recently, and stopped at a house on Northport Avenue and ask for a drink of milk. The young lady informed him that she had only skimmed milk, which the gentleman said would do. After drinking the man insisted upon paying for it, but the young lady refused. She finally said, "We want no pay; we give skimmed milk to pigs."

A little girl's mother wanted her to go to bed before she felt sleepy. "But the moon hasn't sent her children to bed yet," objected the little astronomer petulantly. It so happened that a storm was brewing and heavy clouds were gathering in the heavens. "Go and see if she hasn't," said her mother. The little head was popped out of the window and the sky was scanned eagerly. "Well, I guess I've got to go to bed now," she said after the survey; "the moon is covering up her children and tucking them in."

A Woman's Message.

"I want to send a message in a great hurry."

The Western Union operator braced himself for a "rush" message.

"It's to Chicago."

"Well, we have an open wire to Chicago."

"Can you send it right away?"

"Yes, madam."

"Well, you see Emma's baby is sick and Charlie is away on a trip."

"Well, what shall I say, madam?"

"You see I can't think just where he is. Do you know?"

The operator had to admit that he did not.

"Well, suppose you send it to Chicago."

"Well, suppose you do. Where is he?"

"Have you a Chicago directory here?"

"Yes ma'am," handing it to her.

"I am afraid I have forgotten the address."

"What business is he in?"

"I don't know; he makes a good living though. Don't you think a telegram addressed to Chicago would reach him."

"I'm afraid not."

"Well, then I'll go home and find out his address. Can you tell me the nearest car that will take me home?"

"No, ma'am, I can not."

"Well, it seems queer to me that you telegraph operators don't know anything."

The Editor.

"Hear that man swear; isn't it shocking?" exclaimed a young lady on Park Row yesterday.

"He can't help it," replied the girl's father. "He's an affidavit man on one of the papers."

It was Cardinal Wolsey, "as he lay dying, and perhaps looked back over his strange life, beginning at the time when he was a little school boy and a poor man's son, through all his ambition and his industry, and power and splendor, who said: 'If I had served God as diligently as I have served the king, he would not have given me over to my gray hairs.'"

What comfort it is to know that God has a plan for our lives, and that his convention for us is "ordered in all things and sure!" This very fact ought to make us very careful to follow Him softly and with care.

Rulers to Meet.

LONDON, October 21.—The fact that the czar is to return from Copenhagen to St. Petersburg by way of Berlin, together with the circumstances that the emperor of Germany is on his way from Baden to Berlin and will be at home when the czar arrives in the German capital, would of itself seem to disprove the trustworthiness of the statements coming from Berlin that the two emperors are not to meet, but there is still stronger reason, amounting almost to positive certainty, for believing that the czar will visit Berlin by appointment and that the kaiser has returned to Berlin to be in readiness to welcome him. This convincing proof comes in the form of intelligence from Copenhagen that the czar has consented to the meeting, which is brought about wholly through German solicitation.

This announcement is significant as coming so soon after the Crispi-Kalnoky conference with Prince Bismarck, and conjectures are of course numerous as to causes which have accomplished this result, so much desired by Germany. The simplest explanation is perhaps the true one. The attempts upon the life of the czar, added to the duties incident to the government of his immense empire, have naturally produced in him excessive irritability that renders his sanity of decidedly uncertain tenure. His previous refusal to hold an interview with the German emperor was doubtless caused by distrust of his own state of mind at that time and a natural aversion to discuss matters of the highest importance with a statesman of Prince Bismarck's calibre while feeling himself unequal to a task demanding such great delicacy and tact.

His sojourn in Denmark has resulted in a great improvement in the czar both mentally and physically. The comparative quiet life he has led at Fredenborg, his unaccustomed freedom from personal danger and cares of state, his unrestricted opportunities for bodily exercise and cheering contact with those by whom he is greatly beloved, have resulted in producing a so much happier state of mind that he now feels more equal to a task that his most urgent interests compel him to perform.

The Bulgarian question must be settled in some form, and the threatened customs union between Austria an Germany against Russia is another matter which demands serious consideration. The reported declaration of Prince Bismarck to Signor Crispi, that the czar will not be permitted to make a Russian lake of the Mediterranean nor to expect that interested nations will remain neutral in case of a Russian attack upon Constantinople, has without doubt been pondered upon by Alexander and will not tend to lessen his dislike and distrust of the German premier.

Homeward Bound.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., October 21.—The president and his traveling companions reached here at a quarter past 10 o'clock this morning. They were welcomed by the entire population, and escorted through the streets of the city in carriages. They remained here half an hour. At Calera, a junction point in Alabama, where the train stopped to change engines, three or four thousand persons were assembled, and among them five hundred workmen from Birmingham who had come on a special train with cars gaily decorated. Here three cheers were given for Mrs. Grover Cleveland and the president. Mrs. Cleveland remarked sotto voce, "thev have got it wrong end first," but the president thought the people knew what they were about.

The stop at Asheville, N. C., lasted an hour, during which time the party were taken through the town, their most active escort being a score of ladies and gentlemen on horseback, who led the way up and down the steep mountain roads on a gallop. A feature of the reception was the line formed by a thousand mountaineers and country people clad in their every-day habits, but with bridles bedecked with little flags and equipage trimmed with evergreens. From Asheville eastward the mountain scenery was no less grand than that of the earlier morning. Shortly after noon the train shot through a tunnel and began its descent of the Atlantic slope of the Alleghenies.

LYNCHBURG, Va., October 21.—The presidential special train passed here at 11 o'clock, without stopping.

It was Better to Run than Fight.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—While Jerome F. Manning, a Boston lawyer, who has a number of claims pending, growing out of the Alabama awards and who has made himself particularly obnoxious to the officials because of his methods of transacting business, was waiting in an ante-room for an interview with Secretary Fairchild, William F. McClennan, chief of the warrant division, came in for the same purpose. The two gentlemen soon became engaged in an animated discussion in regard to Manning's cases, during which Manning intimated that McClennan had received a bribe for his actions in certain cases in which he (Manning) was interested. McClennan thereupon struck Manning several savage blows with his fist and Manning made no attempt to retaliate but rushed into the secretary's room calling on the secretary for protection and finally retired through the door.

Commissioner Edgerton's Opinion.

WASHINGTON, October 21.—Civil Service Commissioner Edgerton, in an interview to day with an Associated Press reporter, expressed an opinion that the government clerks and other employes had a right to associate themselves together as a society or association for the purpose of advancing the interests of any politicol party and that such societies or associations have a right to assess members or receive from them, directly or indirectly, contributions for political purposes. Said the commissioner, "when a person has successfully passed the civil service examination and has been duly certified and permanently appointed to a classified service, there the authority of the commission ceases, and his action thereafter is controlled by the appointing power and from that moment his action is outside of the control, authority, influence or power of the civil service commissioner."

He is entirely outside of their jurisdiction. He did not think Oberly's recent order was justified by law.

They Stuck to the Ship.

ANTWERP, Oct. 21.—The Norwegian bark Bravo, which arrived to-day from Charleston, reports that on September 20th, in latitude 38, longitude 49, west, she picked up Captain Cunha and his wife, two sailors and sixteen passengers of the American schooner Carrie W. Clark. The Clark was bound from Fayal to Boston. She encountered a hurricane on September 17th, and after terrific laboring caused by the tremendous seas, the foremast had to be cut away.

A few moments afterwards a heavy sea and gust of wind struck the vessel and the mainmast went by the board, breaking off 30 feet above deck. While the captain thought best to desert the schooner, the crew and passengers, to the number of thirty-six, remained aboard, refusing to leave her, depending upon what was left of the mainmast to rig a sail on and bring the vessel safely into port.

Overheard by "The Judge."

"What makes you think our new boarder is a married man?" askd a boarding-house mistress of one of her servants.

"Because," replied the girl, "I noticed that when he came home early the other morning he removed his shoes before going upstairs."

She—"Harry, I wish you would quit using tobacco; I'm afraid you will injure your health."

He—"Have no fear my dear; my grandfather has used tobacco all his life and he is 80 years old.

She—"Well, just think how old he might be if he had'nt used it.

Miss Newbury (of Boston)—"Did you know a Mr. Trainer, at Yale?"

Young Chubbs—"Know him? I rather think I do. Why, he's the funniest man in the class."

Miss Newbury—"I never heard that he was specially brilliant."

Young Chubbs (absent-mindedly)—"You ought to get him full once, and hear him tell stories."

"You must be very polite to succeed in this business," said a barber to his young apprentice. "Always wear a pleasant smile and try to flatter everybody."

"I'll do my best, sir," replied the apprentice; "but how am I to flatter a bald-headed man?"

"Easy enough," replied the barber, "Just ask him if he doesn't want his hair cut."

Autumn Sports.

Robinson—Hello, Jones. Been away shooting for a couple of weeks, haven't you?

Jones—Yes.

Robinson—Well, what did you bag?

Jones—My trousers.

Purchaser—The game law only went into effect yesterday. How is it you have such a heavy supply of birds on hand?

Dealer—Been keeping them on ice for the last three months.

A Hartford, Conn., man sent his boy into the country equipped with a woodchuck trap and other appliances for enjoying his vacation, and told him to have a good time and be sure to go to church. The first letter he received from the boy said: "Dear papa: I've caught a woodchuck. It was a skunk. I did not go to church. Yours affectionately."

Minister—And there were "Giants" in those days.

Young Lady (to N. Y. base-baller, in a whisper)—I wonder what clubs defeated them!

When a couple of hippodrome prize-fighters get into the rope is the time that the public gets roped in.

Why She Had Them.

The wife of a country minister sat on the front porch mending the clothes of one of her numerous progeny. A neighbor passing that way stepped in for a friendly chat. A basket half full of buttons was on the floor of the porch. After various remarks of a gossipy nature the visitor said:

"You seem to be well supplied with buttons, Mrs. Goodwin?"

"Yes, very well inded."

"My goodness! if there ain't two of the same buttons that my husband had last winter on a suit! I'd know them anywhere."

"Indeed!" said the minister's wife calmly. "I am surprised to hear it, as all these buttons were found in the contribution box; I thought I might as well put them to some use, so I—what, must you go? Well, be sure and call again."

Milesburg Matters.

The house of William Johnson, of this place, caught fire on Friday night, but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

Prof. Lieb, of Bellefonte, visited the Milesburg public schools on Friday for the purpose of explaining a new physiology chart which had been purchased for the High School of that place.

Mrs. Miller is very sick.

It is said that J. C. P. Jones will move into his new house next week.

The Republicans of our town will soon hoist a flag to the Blaine pole, in honor of the candidates on the State ticket. They will make it an interesting event.

The Presbyterian Synod.

WILLIAMSPORT, October 23.—In the Pennsylvania Presbyterian synod yesterday a report was presented by the permanent committee on sustentation cause. A report from the standing committee on education was followed by addresses on the subject by Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Robinson and Dr. D. W. Poor. The report of the standing committee on sustentation was presented by Dr. James J. Brownson. Rev. Dr. S. C. Logan, presented an important paper on the same subject, which the committee recommended. It authorizes the appointment of a committee composed of one member from each presbytery to nominate a secretary to manage the sustentation scheme. A general discussion took place on the matter.

Rev. R. D. Harper, D. D., presented a report on the efforts being made at the present time to repeal the Sabbath laws. The report, after discussion, was adopted with the following resolutions:

First, we recognize in the Personal Liberty league a new form of organized effort for the destruction of the Sabbath and the enthronement of the saloon; second, the avowed purpose and the defiant speech of this organization should awaken the solicitude of Christian people and all good citizens, and call for their best efforts to resist its encroachments; third, we counsel the people under our care to exert their influence for the right to stand by our heritage of civil combination of all evangelical churches in the city of New York to resist the efforts of this organization meets our approval and we recommend that similar action be taken in all our large cities; fifth, that attention be called to this matter from the pulpits and through the press.

Rev. Dr. Stewart presented the report on bills and overtures, which was adopted. Rev. Dr. John Edgar, president of the Wilson female college, presented the narrative showing the religious condition of the church within the bounds of the synod. The evening session was devoted to the consideration of foreign missions, with addresses by Dr. F. E. Ellinwood, secretary of the board of foreign missions, and others. Erie was selected as the next place of meeting.

Thirty-five Delegates.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Dissenters from the action taken at the Minneapolis convention have declared open war with the executive board of the Knights of Labor, and having issued their declaration of independence on returning from the convention about 35 delegates representing 15 states stopped in Chicago and determined to bring about the reorganization of the order. They elected a provisional committee of five members of which Charles F. Seib was made secretary. A communication was dropped at Secretary Seib's office to-day and will be forwarded to-morrow in circular form to Knights of Labor all over the country.

It is addressed to the rank and file of the order of Knights of Labor and says. "Indignant at the usurption of power, the gross violation of law of our order by those high in authority, disgusted with those whose loyality to the present ring has been gained by the pickings they receive, as a reward for their services, incensed at fawning sycophants who crawl on their knees in slavish submission to the most corrupt, the most tyrannical man that has ever controlled a labor organization, we therefore affirm the motto of our order that when bad men combine the good must associate, else they will fall one by one, an unpitied sacrifice in a contemptible struggle. We assert the hour has come when as honest men and women we declare ourselves independent of those who have abused the confidence reposed in them by our order. Our duty to the workingmen and women demands that we st once reorganize the order of the Knights of Labor on a basis which will secure the autonomy of the trade and the sovereignity of the districts in all pertaining to their trade and local affairs, and to prevent it from being used in the future as a machine to fill the coffers of designing and unscrupulous men as it is by those now in power.

Boston Corbett Insane.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—"He is hopelessly insane," said John T. Vodges, of Kansas City, in the Astor House, speaking of Boston Corbett, who was recently taken to an asylnum for the insane in that city. "He thinks that he is pursued by the spectre of John Wilkes Booth." Corbett has had few happy moments since the day he brought his carbine to bear on the crippled assassin of Abraham Lincoln. He went to Camden, N. J., not long after the war ended, and about 1870 became noted for the fervor of his religious zeal. He organized a little band of prayers that met nightly in a frame shanty near Fourth and Linn streets, Camden, and his exhortations became the talk of that town.

Weather on the Lakes.

MARQUETTE, Mich., October 24.—A storm almost the exact parallel in intensity and direction of wind and amount of snowfall of that which caused such havoc here on November 17, last year, set in at daylight yesterday. The wind blew from northeast to north forty-five miles an hour all day, while a blinding snow storm raged, making the gale doubly dangerous for vessels. The captain and crew of the schooner George Sherman have reached the city and report the Sherman a total wreck on Shot Point, about ten miles from Marquette. The Alva Bradley struck at about the same place a little before the Sherman, and Captain Gifford thinks her crew also escaped.

The Sherman left the Sault at 7 a. m, Saturday, and was struck by the storm this side of Whitefish Point at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. She got along finely with the Bradley in company until afternoon, when the vessel separated and soon the captain of the Sherman found that in the thick snow storm she was close ashore. He attempted to come about to clear South Point, but was driven hard on a rocky beach. Seeing that the schooner was lost the crew took to the boat. While going ashore the mainmast fell across the boat, without injuring any one, though when the shore was reached the captain was dashed against the rocks and badly stunned, but was pulled ashore by the others. All were saved.

The men struck the beach at 3.30 p. m., and kept wandering around in the woods until 6 o'clock in the blinding snow, almost dead from exhaustion, dragging the cook, a woman, on a litter. When they reached the railroad track they flagged an ore train bound for Marquette and reached here this morning. The Sherman was loaded with coal for Pickands & Co., Marquette. The vessel doubtless will be a total wreck.

The Alva Bradley was coal laden and was consigned to the railroad company here. She went ashore before the Sherman. Captain Gifford said she is on head first and apparently easy. He thinks the crew got off, as it was only a few rods to the shore. He saw nothing of the crew, but could not stop to hunt for them because of the condition of his own men. Nothing was seen of their small boats. It is believed the crew of the Bradley are now roaming around the woods in the terrible storm, and the city marshal, with a gang of fifteen men, has gone to find them if possible. The Lawrence is also probably lost, as she passed the Sault yesterday for portage entry.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.—A special from Ashtabula Harbor says: The schooner James F. Foy, of Detroit, foundered in twenty feet of water, just outside the pier at this place, this morning. The crew have all reached the shore in safety. A large vessel is going to pieces on the beach at Noble, a village about ten miles east of this city. The crew are lashed to the rigging. The life-saving crew have rowed to the scene in their boats. No particulars can be obtained as yet.

CHICAGO, October 24.—There was a heavy wind all of yesterday and last night, blowing with almost the velocity of a storm, and much damage to exposed vessels may be expected. It extended over the entire lake region, and at midnight had a velocity of about forty miles. Beyond one or two trivial accidents no injury to shipping was reported in the local harbor, and the few vessels which arrived from outside suffered nothing worth mentioning.

BUFFALO, Oct. 24.—A great gale swept over this city this morning, the wind attaining a maximum velocity of sixty-six miles per hour. One house was blown down, and shade trees, signs, and windows suffered most terribly. No serious damage is reported from the lake.

HULL, Mass., Oct. 24.—The brig M. C. Haskell, of Rockland, Capt. Oliver, Philadelphia for Boston, with coal, is ashore on the Spit near Bug light, Boston harbor.

FORT DALAOUSIE, Oct. 24.—The barge Oriental, coal laden, bound for Charlotte to Toronto in tow of the propellor Scotia, broke her tow line during the severe weather last night and sank with all hands. The crew consisted of Captain George Stewart, Edward Stark, Charles Baker, Herbert Storey and Minnie Herbert.

Cherokee Politics.

TALLEQUAH, I. T., Oct. 24.—The killing of Editor B. H. Stone, of the Tahlequah Telephone, on Saturday, will, it is feared, result this week in a civil war in the Cherokee nation. The tragedy is a climax to the most bitter political fight that has ever taken place in the territory, and the indications are that the trouble will result in the severance of tribal relations and that the territory will soon be thrown open to settlers. The Cherokee nation is divided into two political parties—the nationalists, headed by a half-breed named Rabbi Bunch, and the Downing party, led by a white man named Sam Mays. The nationalists are now in power and have controlled the affairs of the Cherokee for more than a dozen years.

The Cherokee Advocate, the official organ of the administration, is owned by the council and people, and was first established as non-partisan, but of late years it has always supported the administration. B. H. Stone, the editor of the Telephone, was a white man, and his paper was the recognized organ of the opposition or Downing party. The campaign for the election of a chief of the Cherokees opened in midsummer, and the Telephone at once began to attack the party in power. One of the important issues of the election was the leasing of the territory known as the Cherokee strip to the cattlemen. The Nationalists were in favor of leasing it at the old figures, but the Downing party fought the lease and charged the administration with corruption. The cattlemen took an active interest in the fight, and of course sided with the nationalists.

The Czar's Army.

LONDON, October 25.—Not long ago statements concerning the supposed weakness of the czar's army were quietly hatched by the German newspapers, and began to make the rounds of the press of all the countries. Credit was rarely given to the source of the interesting items and very generally it was lost sight of that Germany inspired the articles, and hence they came to be considered as honest reports, and as such were believed by people at large. Pictures of utter faithlessness of Russian soldiery were drawn, and it was repeated again and again that a large portion of the officers of the Russian army were Germans, who would never turn their swords against the Fatherland.

It was said that many nihilists and soldiers were in the ranks, and that in the event of a war the czar would find his own army so far from being a protection and an instrument in his hand for effensive warfare that protection from the army itself would be a momentous question to Russia's ruler. The fact, however, is that the czar's army was never, perhaps, in better condition than at present. While necessarily there are nihilists to some extent among the soldiers of so large an army, and while there is a system of peculation being carried on by a "ring" of unprincipled officers, the discipline and character of the rank and file of the Russian soldiery equals those of any country and exceeds most.

If any one has fears for the condition of the Russian army he can quiet them by reflecting upon its actual strength and numbers, and that it is an undoubted fact that the czar can count on the loyalty of his soldiers in the event of a foreign war or otherwise. The manœuvres of 200,000 reserves at Moscow, last week, resulted entirely satisfactorily, and this is only one evidence out of many of the strength and strategic ability of the Russian army.

In a Mexican Prison.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 25.—An American citizen, a railroad engineer named James Burnett, employed for a long time on the Mexican Central road, is entangled in the meshes of the Mexican law, and is walking the streets of the city of Chihuahua under a heavy bond, not knowing when he will be able to get clear. Over a year ago Burnett ran a passenger train on the Mexican Central road as engineer, bound for Paso del Norte south, and at one of the small stations between Paso del Norte and Chihuahua, in an almost deserted country, he ran across a drove of burros loaded with tornillo wood such as are seen almost everywhere in that country destitute of fuel.

There was quite a drove of them, and all of them were loaded two or three feet high above their pack-saddles. The train, after duly whistling and slowly running through, scattering them, reached Chihuahua City and never thought that any harm had been done.

On arriving at Chihuahua it was ascertained at the depot that a dead Mexican was coiled up on the cow-catcher. He was snuggly wrapped up in a blanket. The yardmen tried to awaken him, thinking at first that he was asleep, but it was soon ascertained that he was dead. He had been killed by concussion. He was the herder of the flock of burros which had crossed the railroad track. He was muffled up with his blankets, and in such a manner that he could neither hear nor see anything.

As soon as the corpse was discovered in the city of Chihauhau, all the officials of the train were arrested and put in jail. After a preliminary examination they were all discharged except the engineer. He was retained on a formally preferred charge of murder, but on the representa- to a superior court the bail required of him pending the usually tedious trial was fixed at $300. This was readily given, the Mexican Central railroad company being one of the securities required on the bond, which was considered only formal and nominal, as nothing criminal could be alleged against the engineer.

Meet in Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, October 25.—To-morrow morning the Ladies' Loyal league, Grand Army of the Republic' will meet in this city in state convention. About one hundred delegates are expected. Mrs Brunner, of Altoona, the secretary, will read her report in the morning. It will show that $1,200 have been expended for relief and about $1,000 paid into the treasuries of the Grand Army posts.

Attempt to Burn a Building.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 25.—An attempt to burn 30 Italians while asleep in a building in the township of Paris, Kent county, was frustrated last night by the timely warning of one who awoke and found the building in flames. The building was used by an Italian, King Santa Garfala, who was keeping a sort of store, with rooms above for the Italians at work on the new G. R., E. & D. road, five miles south of this city.

There has been bitter feeling between this crew and a crew of fourteen who work near by and who live in the city. About 10 o'clock last night an unknown man crept into a vacant room and set fire to the house and then joined a party on the outside, who barricaded the doors and used every effort to keep the inmates from escaping. They, however, managed to get out, many of them leaving their clothing. An effort is being made to find the guilty ones and punish them. It was a narrow escape for all, as they had retired early and were sound asleep when the alarm was given.

Thanksgiving Day Appointed.

WASHINGTON, October 25.—President Cleveland has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 24, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

Ringing the Wedding Bells.

At 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon a wedding event of note occurred in Milesburg. The contracting parties were Mr. Joseph A. Rodgers and Miss Alice Witherite. Mr. C. E. Poorman was the groom's best man and Miss Mable Smith was the bride's maid of honor. We understand that Rev. W. O. Wright performed the important ceremony which made them one. The entire affair was attended with the usual festivities which render such occurrences especially pleasant. They departed at 5 o'clock for a brief wedding journey.

The bride is a bright and amiable young lady, endowed with ornamental and useful accomplishments of hand and mind and the noblest qualities of heart. It is not surprising that Mr. Rodgers was attracted by her. The groom is employed at the Pennsylvania Railroad Station. He is one of the most exemplary and excellent young gentleman whom we know. Quiet and modest in action and disposition, firm and faithful in attention to duty, he is indeed worthy the esteem of anyone. Our congratulations are, therefore, extended with the utmost confidence that the best hopes and wishes regarding them will be fulfilled in their future lives.

—Please remember that the election of Mr. Daniel Rhoads to the associate judgeship will not be a question of a Democratic or a Republican victory. It is a question of the administration of justice in the interest of morality and purity. The only denial the Democratic papers give to the charge that their candidate has pledged himself to favor the evil element of the county is to call him "Honest John Grove." We do not question his honesty; indeed, we believe he is honest enough to confess that he has no sympathy with those of his fellow citizens who are anxious to eradicate a popular vice from our county. Yes, Mr. Grove, is honest. He speaks his mind freely on many subjects. But the universal belief is that "Honest John's" opinions and actions will not be the best suited for the position to which he is a candidate.

—It has been considered expedient by those having the matter in charge that Mrs. Bryan shall remain in the room where she is now lying although it is not adapted for one who is in such a precarious condition. She will be provided with a nurse. Her brother, a very gentlemanly and prepossessing individual, was in Bellefonte on Tuesday. He came to see that she should not want any comfort that can be procured. What can be learned of her family is in every respect favorable. She had become, to a certain extent, alienated from her own family, having been married previously and then separated from her first husband.

—When Mr. Blaine attended a dinner in England someone recalled the fact that he seriously offended the English people while he was Secretary of State by changing the terminology of public documents from "The President begs to hope" to "The President expects." "Expect" has always been the word used in the Queen's public documents. Blaine did not evade a reply, but said: "It may have been quite right for us to only 'beg to hope' when we were only a little nation of five or six millions. But now that we are 60 millions to your 35 millions, I think we have as much right to 'expect' as you have."

—We are requested to announce that if any friends of missions in Nebraska wish to contribute for that object they can send or bring the same to Rev. J. O. Davis or to Mr. C. F. Montgomery. Money contributed will be used in the work now being done in the West by Rev. John Hewitt. We understand that a statement concerning this work and its needs was made in the Episcopal church on Sunday evening, but were unable to be present, hence did not hear it.

Politics and News Items from Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, PA., Oct. 24, '87.

MR. EDITOR: I see several of our newspapers are troubling themselves about the vote of the Knights of Labor. I think this is entirely unnecessary, as the K. of L. will vote as they think best, and should they thinink best to vote for one of their own members, why it is no difference to any one that does not belong to that order. A. J. Grieat is undoubtedly defeated for commissioner unless the Republicans of Bellefonte save him by voting for him, and if they do they will call down on their giddy heads a heap of indignation that they will not be able to remove for years to come. Nine years is too long for any one man to hold office in any county. But Mr. Grieat says that if he only can be elected this time why he will be certain of it the next time, but in my opinion it will take more than soup bones to pull him through this time.

While reading a dog story this morning I was reminded of a dog belonging to your townsman, John P. Harris, Esq. One day last week, while in your town, I accepted the hospitality of that most estimable gentleman and his bright and intelligent family at dinner. I was shown a very fine setter dog that was as obedient as a child and as knowing as any dog could be. At Mr. Harris' bidding he would bring his slippers, cane, hat, newspaper and do anything else that he was bid to do.

The same evening, while waiting for the train at Thompson Station on the B. & B. R. R. R., I had the pleasure of taking supper with Mr. Peter Mayes and his good wife Jennie. Mr. Mayes informed me that the hogs in that neighborhood were dying from some strange disease; that the week before Mr. Wesley Showalter had lost sixteen and Mr. Mayes has lost one, but Peter don't care. Peter is a small man in size, but he has a heart in him as big as an ox.

Next week there will be a lodge of the Knights of the Golden Eagle organized at Port Matilda with about fifty members.

Dr. Tobin spent yesterday (Sunday) in Altoona. The Doctor has purchased himself a fine driving horse.

Mr. Ellis Lytle was at Sandy Ridge on Saturday surveying some land for Philadelphia parties.

Mr. Frank Burket has accepted a situation in the office of the Juniata Mining Company.

Mr. I. G. Burket has packed his bag and baggage and waits on the many customers of a large dry good firm in Tyrone.

Mr. Benner Wilson, son of W. L. Wilson, of this place, has returned from Montana where he has spent the last five or six years.

Rev. W. F. D. Noble, of this town, shot an eagle some time ago that measured 6 feet from the tips of its wings, but reader, please don't imagine that it was a Knight of the Golden Eagle, for it wasn't, for it smelled awful; but 'Squire Lever is acquainted with all the birds in America and said it was an eagle. BUZZARD.

—We are glad to hear that Prof. Hayden is making arrangements to give a concert for the benefit of the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. The Professor is a most skilled, learned and careful musician and whatever he attempts will be crowned with artistic success. He is not yet prepared to announce a date, but will do so soon. He also anticipates a similar entertainment in Milesburg for the benefit of the Potter Post G. A. R.

—A special to the Johnstown Tribune from Ebensburg, says that the store of John Fiske, in White township, Cambria county, was entered by burglars Sunday night. Entrance was effected by prying open the door. Four hundred dollars in money is missing, including considerable funds belonging to the post-office. Mr. Fiske thinks he knows the perpetrators. No arrests have yet been made.

—It is said that the gentlemen who were in the train here on Tuesday morning and who left it long enough to visit the big spring for a drink of water, were Baptist ministers on their way home from Williamsport, where they attended a convention. The fact that they were Baptist ministers partly accounts for their desire for liberal supplies of fresh water.

—Two propositions have been submitted to the people of Philipsburg to provide for the lighting of the streets with the Arc lights. One proposition was by Mr. John Kenyon, and it seems to be received with much more favor than the other. According to the estimates made Mr. Kenyon's proposal will be much cheaper.

—On Friday next Rev. B. Wheeler who is the presiding elder of this district of the A. M. E. church, will visit Bellefonte and will preach in the church here in the evening. He was formerly pastor of the church on Wylie Avenue, Pittsburg, and is now located in Williamsport.

—Tuesday morning about twenty-five of the gentlemen passengers in the 10.30 train left the cars here and went out to the spring, each one taking a drink of the sparkling water and returning to the depot in time to enter the train again before its departure. That's a mighty convenient train, and the drink which Bellefonte provides the birds of passage is much more healthful than that procured at most places.

TARRANT'S SELTZER APERIENT

EFFERVESCENT, ECONOMICAL, EFFICACIOUS.

Beware of Indigestion's pain
And Constipation's cruel reign;
For often in their wake proceed
The sable pall and mourner's weed;
Then check these troubles ere an hour,
In TARRANT'S SELTZER lies the power.

Never defer until to-morrow what should be attended to to-day. A slight cough shouldn't be neglected when Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will cure it.

The readers of our publication are requested to use Salvation Oil for any and all pains. It is a sure cure and costs only 25 cents.

—The Beech Creek railroad company, since the cold weather begun, says the Lock Haven Express, have been trying the experiment of heating their passenger cars with steam, and with complete success. The steam used for making the heat is taken from the engine and does the work of a stove satisfactorily. The system works so well that it will likely be generally adopted.

Beautiful Teeth

Are more to be desired than riches; in fact, they insure health, by properly performing mastication. Minot's Dentifrice —price 25 cents—is the finest in the world. It beautifully whitens the teeth, and insures healthy gums. Sold everywhere.

—From the Lock Haven Democrat: "John Cummings, a young farmer of near Milheim, and a son-in-law of Mr. George Moyer, of Sugar Valley, was recently declared insane by an inquisition board summoned before 'Squire Reifsnyder at his office in Millheim, to decide the sanity or insanity of said Cummings. The committee will so report to court."

—The large barn owned by Mr. Scott Woods, about one mile from Julian Furnace, was destroyed by fire on Monday at 9 o'clock, together with all its contents. It contained some good stock and the entire crop of the year. Mr. Woods had no insurance. This makes the loss very heavy for him and he will have general sympathy in his misfortune.

—At 6 o'clock Thursday evening, at Trinity Episcopal church, Bethlehem, Pa., Robert A. Shillingford, of Peale, Superintendent of the Clearfield Coal corporation and formally of Johnstown, was married to Miss Elizabeth L. Webb, daughter of the late Gen. George Webb, Rev. George Allen officiating.

—At noon Wednesday the condition of Mrs. Bryan was reported about the same as on Tuesday, except that she was worrying some at things which imprudent visitors had said to her. People who don't know how to keep quiet should be excluded from the sick room.

When a child, by any unusual symptoms, shows that it is suffering great pain, use Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup. It will sooth the little sufferer.

The simplest means are generally the safest and surest. Hence the great demand for Laxador, for liver disease, dyspepsia, etc. Price 25c.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall St., N. Y. 19 29 1y

Brevities.

—The sermon by Rev. George S. Chambers, of Harrisburg, in the Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, was an admirable one and is spoken of in the most enthusiastica terms of praise by those who were so favored as to hear it.

—A vicious bull owned by Wes Snyder, of near Rebersburg, says the Lock Haven Democrat, broke loose, one night recently, and found his way to that gentleman's horse stable, lacerating one of the animals in a frightful manner.

—An exchange says that it may be of advantage at this season to remember that a piece of zinc placed on the live coals in a hot stove will effectually clean out a stove pipe, the vapor produced carrying off the soot by decomposition.

—On Monday a bundle of paper in the Bellefonte depot building was discovered to be on fire. The paper belonged to Mr. S. H. Williams, the paper hanger. The ever-alert force at the station discovered the raging flames and extinguished them at once.

—The nineteen-months old baby of Mrs. Robb, of Eagleville, who was severely hurt recently by being thrown from a buggy in Lock Haven, died a few days ago. Mrs. Robb and another lady who were in the buggy were also thrown out and injured.

—The Brockerhoff House is still in charge of Mr. C. G. McMillen, although he will dispose of his interest in it as soon as possible. We understand that he will become one of the proprietors of the Berkley House, a very large and popular hotel, in Dayton, Ohio.

—If your hogs are sick try this: "A Huntingdon county farmer saved his hogs from cholera by giving each of them a blue mass pill rolled in chop. His neighbors' hogs died and he saved his as stated. He got the prescription from an old German doctor."

—As we passed the Centre Democrat office on Monday we heard a great crash and expected to see the walls of the office projected out by the force of the explosion within. But it was only a few boards hurled on to a pile by the workmen at the bank building. The natural gas had not exploded.

—When the Field Operatic Minstrel Company was in Milton the people said it was the best that had ever visited that place. The frequent encores and round after round of applause was ample evidence of its high appreciation. The entertainment will be given here next Monday night. Reserve a seat at Sourbeck's.

—Hundreds of birds lose their lives by flying against the lights of the various light houses along the coasts. The number of winged creatures that perish in this way may be estimated when it is known that on a single morning 1400 birds have been picked up on the balcony of the famous light house, the Statue of Liberty.

—Barnum's show closed the season in Hoboken last Saturday night and has gone into winter quarters in Bridgeport. King Thebau's hairy family said good-bye to the Texas giants and the "human cork screw" sighed farewell the to airy rope dancer and all was over. The show has traveled 10,560 miles this season and given 350 performances.

Justice to the Germans.

A few days ago two large delegations of German citizens of Philadelphia called upon Chairman Cooper, at his headquarters in the Continental, Philadelphia, and asked him to correct, through the channels of Republican newspapers, the too sweeping claim of the Personal Liberty and other leagues that they represent, in their organizations and purposes, all the Germans of Philadelphia or the State.

They feel the injustice of these extravagant claims, and desire in the plainest, possible way to show to all of their fellow-citizens that the Germans who belong to any religious denomination, or who are educated, or who have acquired homes under this Government and feel that they are loyal citizens of the State and nation, have no sympathy whatever with the Socialistic forces operating the Personal Liberty Leagues, and which are pushing to dangerous excesses the agitation for the repeal of proper laws restraining the sale of liquors.

They ask all Republican journals to publish this fact and to say that all of the better classes of Germans, at least the great majority of them, will, as heretofore, vote the Republican ticket and exert special effort in its behalf as a rebuke to the Socialists and adventurers who are now trying to speak for all of their nationality.

Married the Wrong Woman.

At all times, even under the most favorable circumstances, matrimony is a serious affair. But how much more than serious it becomes when a young man, the heir to vast property, the idol of his home, recklessly takes the fatal plunge, and links his life with an utterly uncongenial partner!

This was the deplorable fate of Victor St. Maurice, a manly young fellow, the personification of most of the noble qualities which good men honor and good women admire. From birth he had been a pet, his mother humoring his whims until he became so selfwilled that it was unpleasant to oppose his wishes. Just after attaining the years of manhood fate threw in his way a young lady of bewitching face and form, a Miss Rose Reynolds, whose ambition was equal to her beauty. The axiom of the blindness of love was illustrated in his case; for from the moment he saw her, only her charms met his eye, and he saw not her mental deficiencies. A short courtship was succeeded by a hasty engagement; and then the selfwilled son, never dreaming that his mother would interpose any serious objections to his marriage, announced to her his engagement with the fair siren who had enslaved his heart.

Imagine the dismay of his mother, on beholding this prospective daughter-in-law, and noting the defects which had escaped the love-blind eyes of the son. She advised a delay of the marriage for a year, the young lady meanwhile to be allowed every opportunity to acquire the accomplishments so essential to one about to make an exalted marriage. The wise mother knew that her son's love for the girl was but a passing fancy, which would not outlive the year; therefore she advised delay.

But did the son accede to her wishes? Ah, the fatal blunder of his life was when Victor decided to deceive his mother, and himself become the instructor of his fair enslaver, in the capacity of a husband!

The marriage, of course, was a secret one: but long before the first year of wedded life had expired, the unhappy young man bitterly realized that he had been worse than a fool, and that he had wedded the wrong woman! How he strove to conceal his folly from his mother, and from the whole world, and the tragic incidents which followed, are vividly described in the powerful emotional story of "The Gipsy's Daughter," by Bertha M. Clay, just begun in No. 51 of the New York Weekly, now ready. Invest one cent in a postal card, and mail it to us with your name and address plainly written on it. You will receive a sample copy of No. 51 of the New York Weekly, containing this beautiful story, and a choice variety of other reading. Address STREET & SMITH, 31 Rose Street, New York.

—Our attention is called to the fact that, if possible, better provision should be made for Mrs. John Bryan, the woman who is now suffering from the effects of the terrible wound received on Saturday night. The room in which she lives is hardly suitable for one who is in such a feeble condition. She should have every attention and care which will contribute to her improvement.

Losses by Fire.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The steamer Hindoustan, which arrived at Marseilles yesterday from New York, was totally destroyed by fire last night. All her merchandise, 3,000 tons, was also destroyed. The Hindoustan was a French steamer.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 26.—The agricultural implement repair shops of S. H. Teakels and the furniture factory of E. J. Schneck & Co. were burned today; loss, $25,000. This is the fourth time these firms have been burned out. The origin of the fire is unknown.

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 26.—The town of Spencer, in Roane county, was nearly destroyed by fire Saturday. Twenty-six buildings, including the court house and jail, were burned. Loss about $100,000; insurance small. Several desperate characters were among the prisoners liberated from the jail to save their lives, and all fled.

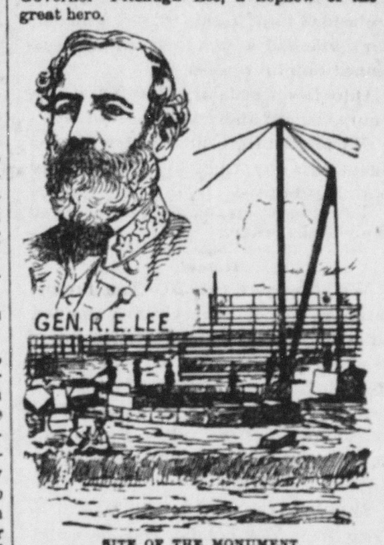
MONUMENT TO R. E. LEE.

ITS CORNER STONE TO BE LAID ON THE 27TH.

How the Fund to Perpetuate the Memory of the Great Confederate General Has Been Raised—The Sight of the Monument.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 26.—Richmond has had many gala days since the war, but on the 27th, the big day of the state fair, the corner stone of the Lee monument will be laid, and the pageant on that occasion promises to be the most imposing ever seen in the south.

Soon after Robert E. Lee died a fund for a monument was started. Two or three associations for collecting money were formed, and in a short while the fund amounted to several thousand dollars. But, as is the case with most great monument enterprises, a drag came, and but for the wise investment of the money the scheme would have gone over to the next generation. As it is, however, the Central association, into which the other associations were merged, has in hand $60,000, and this pays for the main figure—an equestrian statue of the illustrious chieftain—and the granite pedestal. The French sculptor, Mercie, is executing the work, and the committee in charge of the corner stone ceremonies is headed by Governor Fitzhugh Lee, a nephew of the great hero.



SITE OF THE MONUMENT.

Governor Lee expected to have laid the corner stone last spring as the southern troops returned from the national encampment at Washington; but as the date drew near, it was found that the site could not be got ready in time. So the present date was fixed upon.

The committee of arrangements, composed of members of R. E. Lee camp, was organized early in the summer, and invitations to distinguished individuals and military associations were sent out forthwith, but not until lately could anything like an outline sketch of the ceremonies have been made. In the first place, Jefferson Davis was to be a prominent feature of the day. He informed the committee that he would come, if possible, but some weeks ago he wrote that he was forced to decline the invitation on account of a previous engagement in Macon.

Gen. Beauregard was invited to act as chief marshal, but he declined on account of a previous engagement. Gen. Wade Hampton was then invited, and his acceptance was finally announced.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, one of the full generals of the Confederate army, now occupying the federal office of railroad commissioner, will be present.

Gen. Jubal Early—"Old Jube," as he is called by the "vets"—will ride in the procession, as will also Gen. Williams C. Wickham, for a long time head of the Republican party in Virginia; but Gen. Longstreet has sent word on a postal card that he could not attend the ceremonies.

The site of the monument is in the fashionable west end, just beyond Richmond college, eleven acres of ground having been donated for the purpose by a wealthy young citizen, Maj. Otway Allen.

The city council refused to make an appropriation for the gala features of the day, but the citizens came forward promptly and subscribed the amount necessary to make the affair a complete success.

There will be no less than 10,000 men in line distributed somewhat as follows: Three thousand uniformed volunteers, including five full batteries of artillery and four troops of cavalry; 3,000 Confederate veterans, and 4,000 members of civic societies in regalia. The Richmond Fire department, ten companies, with apparatus, will add a picturesque feature to the parade. Of the veterans, 1,000 came from Maryland and 500 from Norfolk. The Marylanders bring the full United States Marine band, and this band will render the music on the grand stand.

The stone will be laid with Masonic ceremonies, Grand Master W. F. Drinkard presiding. One hundred Knights Templar, mounted, will form the escort to the Blue Lodge Masons. The orator of the day will be Col. Thomas Marshall, a distinguished member of the Baltimore bar.

The railroad companies have fixed cheap rates and visitors will pour in by the thousands on every line. The visiting soldiers will camp in the fair grounds and the rest of the comers will be ensconced in hotels, boarding houses, private houses, and improvised lodging halls.

Buffalo's Republican Campaign.

BUFFALO, Oct. 26.—The Republicans opened the campaign in this city last night by an enormous mass meeting. Senator Allison, of Iowa, made a somewhat lengthy speech and was enthusiastically applauded.

Doctors in Prescribing Wines.

The Physicians desire to give a liquor containing the extractive parts of the grape, such as iron, grape-sugar and the other elements which give to port wine its special flavor or bouquet and its singular blood making proprieties from the iron that is contained in the coloring principle of pure Red Wine.

Speer's New Jersey Wines, especially his Port, are grown on a brown stone shale sod, rich in iron and from vines brought from the banks of the River Doura, in Portugal, where the finest ports in the world are made, but none ever reach this country in a pure state. Medical.

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, "That every person executing the office of justice of the peace, who shall hold any office or appointment of profit or trust under the government of the United States, or of this State, or of any city or incorporated district, whether a commissioned officer or otherwise, subordinate officer or agent, who is or shall be employed under the Legislative, Executive or Judiciary departments of this State, or of the United States, or of any city or incorporated district; and also that any member of Congress or State Legislature, and of the select or common council of any city, or commissioners of any incorporated district, are by law incapable of holding or exercising, at the same time, the office or appointment for Judge, Inspector or Clerk of an election of this Commonwealth; and that no Inspector, Judge or any other officer of any such election shall be eligible to any office to be then voted for."

At all elections held under the laws of the Commonwealth, the polls shall be opened at 7 o'clock a. m. and closed at 7 o'clock p. m.

TICKETS TO BE VOTED.

The qualified electors will take notice of the following Acts of Assembly, approved the 12th day of March, 1866: "An Act regulating the mode of voting at all elections in the several counties of this Commonwealth."

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the qualified electors of the several counties of this Commonwealth, at all general, township, borough and special elections are hereby authorized and required to vote by tickets, printed or written, severally classified as follows: One ticket shall embrace the names of judges of courts voted for, and to be labelled outside "Judiciary;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all State officers to be voted for, and shall be labelled "State;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all the county officers to be voted for, including the office of Senator and members of the Assembly voted for, and labeled "County," one ticket shall embrace the names of all township officers voted for, and be labeled "Township;" one ticket shall embrace the names of all borough officers voted for, and shall be labeled "Borough;" and each class shall be deposited in separate ballot boxes.

Given under my hand and seal, at my office in Bellefonte, this 3d day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-Seven, and in the 111th year of the Independence of the United States.

J. MILES WALKER,
Sheriff of Centre County.

EXECUTOR'S NOTICE.—Letters testamentary on the estate of Sarah Loy, deceased, late of Burnside township, having been granted to the undersigned, he requests all persons knowing themselves indebted to said estate to make immediate payment, and those having claims against the same to present them duly authenticated for settlement.
19 38 6t W. S. LOY, Executor.

ORPHAN'S COURT SALE.—By virtue of an order issued out of the Orphan's Court of Centre county there will be exposed at public outcry on the premises in Curtin township, Centre county, Pa., about one mile west of Romola, on at 2 o'clock p. m., the following desirable real estate—the property of Job M Lucas, late of Curtin township, deceased, described as follows: On the north by lands of David McCloskey and Job W. Packer, on the east by lands of Conrad Singer, on the south by lands of David Brickley and J. P. Dehaas and on the west by Joseph McCloskey's heirs and Webster Butler containing about seventy-five acres—be the same more or less. There are about 35 or 40 acres in cultivation and the balance in fine growing young timber. A good orchard of choice fruit, of different varieties, on the farm. Several never-failing springs of water on the premises—one of which is at the door of the house.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 12th, 1887,

TERMS OF SALE: Ten per cent. when the property is knocked down; one-third of balance at confirmation of sale; one-third in one year and one-third in two years. Deferred payments to be secured by bond and mortgage on the premises—with interest. H. H. HARSHBERGER, 19 42 3t Administrator.

Murder No. 3.

ALTOONA, Oct. 20.—Another murder, says the Tribune, has been committed in Cambria county, making three which have occurred within less than ten months. The first was the killing of Samuel Gregg by George Aukenbaurer, on December 25, 1886, in Gallitzin; the second was Michael Kunzman, who was killed in the same town on March 26, 1887, by Jacob Wilson; and now a third is added to the list.

Tunnel hill is a suburb of Gallitzin, being distant from it a half mile or more east. Thomas Stanley's house stands near the Blair county line, and to his home on Tuesday Stanley went, much the worse from the numerous potations in which he had indulged. On his arrival he began quarreling with his wife and, it is said, beat her. To escape from her enraged and liquor-maddened husband, Mrs. Stanley fled from the house to go to a neighbor's. Her husband followed and with a double-barreled gun which he took with him shot her in the left side, from the effects of which she died half an hour afterward. At the time of the shooting the murderer was in Blair county while his victim was in Cambria county.

The news of the awful tragedy soon spread, and officers quickly arrested the murderer, and the same night lodged him in jail at Ebensburg. Stanley is about 55 years of age, while his wife was 50. Both had been married before, Mrs. Stanley's former name having been Mrs. Dillen. She leaves three sons, all of whom reside in the neighborhood of Gallitzin. The murderer has two grown up sons and one danghter. The deceased was respected and greatly liked by all who knew her, and her tragic death has caused a deep sorrow throughout the entire community. A post mortem examination was made of her body yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Stanley was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic church at Gallitzin, and her funeral will take place this morning.

The Episcopal Congress.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., October 19.—The second day's session of the Protestant Episcopal church congress of the United States opened this morning at Liederkranl hall with a large attendance.

The auditorium is the largest in the city, but before the hour of meeting the lower hall and galleries were crowded, and when the proceedings began standing room was not obtainable, many being turned away. The topic discussed was "The Higher Education of Women." Bishop Dudley called the assemblage to order and read the opening praper. The secretary announced that the topic, "The Proposal to Change the Name of the Church," would be discussed at the evening session.

Bishop Dudley then announced the topic and introduced the first writer, the Rev. George L. Locke, R. I: He said that a fair majority of women, as of men, were capable of receiving the higher education. He referred to the University of Michigan, where the women were educated in all the higher branches. No more of them broke down and they showed more enthusiasm. The agreement that the minds of women should not be developed more than their muscles in order that they might become masculine was neither a good Mohammedan nor a Christian doctrine. Woman suffrage was a possibility of the future.

The next speaker introduced, Rev. Henry Ziegenfuss, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., said one of the chief obstacles in the higher education of women was the lack of desire on the part of men to treat women with perfect fairness. The following gentlemen are yet to speak upon the subject: The Rev. George W. Dumbell, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Rev. Wm. Wilberforce Newton, of Pittsfield, Mass.

The Knights Adjourn.

MINNEAPOLIS, October 19.—The general assembly of the Knights of Labor remained in session all day, only taking a final adjournment at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Among the enormous number of documents passed upon to-day, the most important was a resolution granting the cigar makers, who belong to the Cigar Makers International union which was expelled by the action of the Richmond convention, the privilege of reinstatement without payment of fee.

Further action provides that the general executive board shall have nothing to do with strikes unless called upon to interfere by the district assemblies or national trades assemblies involved. The assembly resolved, by a vote of 112 to 29, that the Knights of Labor in parade shall carry nothing but the state or national colors.

The committee on appeals and grievances reported the charges against Secretary Litchman groundless. The rule prohibiting the sale of liquors at picnics was sustained. The next convention will be held at Indianapolis.

To Harness Niagara's Power.

BUFFALO, N. Y., October 19.—It is expected that before long a practical test of one of the numerous harnesses for the control of Niagara's power, brought into existence under the stimulus of a $100,000 prize, will receive a practical test, which will demonstrate its use or prove its failure and give something further on which to base arguments that Niagara contains no great shakes of available power. An endless chain, with feathering buckets, was the invention of a Buffalo man. The rights from Erie and Niagara counties he sold for $65,000. He says that he has a contract for that amount. A stock company with $1,000,000 capital is to be formed if the coming test proves successful. George W. Smith has obtained backing to the amount of $1,000,000, which is the amount a 1,000-horse power machine will cost, and yesterday he received the necessary permission from the secretary of war to place the machinery in the river. Mechanical drawings are now being made, and it is expected that the machine will be tested this fall.

The Baptist Anniversaries.

WILLIAMSPORT, October 20.—The Baptist Anniversaries met again yesterday. The General Association of Missionaries occupied the day. The annual report of the Board of Managers showed that appropriations aggregating $9,000 had been made to fifty-six missionaries in seventeen associations. The receipts of the year were $10,000; expenditures, $12,000; deficit, $2,000. An animated discussion took place over the report, the special plea made in behalf of Pennsylvania provoking it. The discussion developed the fact that Pennsylvania has one Baptist to every sixty-two inhabitants; the country as a whole, one Baptist to twenty-two inhabitants. The report was accepted with slight modifications.

Addresses were made by the Rev. J. H. Chambers, of Huntingdon; Rev. F. B. Grevel, of Philadelphia; Rev. J. S. James and Rev. C. Pierce of Germantown; Rev. J. H. Harris, of Factoryville; Rev. Dr. E. B. Palmer, district secretary, and others. This evening a sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. John Peddie, of Philadelphia. The following officers were re-elected: President, Charles Miller, of Franklin; secretary, Rev. W. H. Conrad; treasurer, Rev. James S. Swartz, of Philadelphia.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., October 20.—At to-day's session of the Baptist Anniversaries of the State the ministers had their meeting. Rev. John Love, Jr., of Germantown, delivered the address; Dr. Wayland, editor of the National Baptist, read an essay and Rev. R. M. Luther, of Philadelphia, preached the sermon. The officers elected were: President, E. W. Bliss, of Malvern; first vice president, J. E. Barry, Waverly; second vice president, T. J. Collins, Brady's Bend; secretary, S. F. Forgeus, Bellwood. The Anniversaries closed with the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society.

On the Rail.

CHARLESTON, S. C., October 20.—There was a collision on the Richmond and Danville railroad to-day near Greer's, between here and Atlanta, which was caused by a freight train not side-tracking at Greer's to let a passenger train pass. The passenger train consisted of nine coaches, and passed Greenville four hours late. Both engines were wrecked, as was also the postal, baggage and express cars of the passenger train and the first three cars of the freight. Engineer Harris and Conductor Reville, of the freight train, have disappeared. A negro saw them running through the woods.

The killed are:

Mrs Hamp McDonnell, of Ashville, N. C.

Robert Ward, the passenger train engineer.

The injured are:

J B Erwin, Ashville, leg broken and foot badly mashed.

Ed Harnett, fireman of passenger train, arm amputated and badly scalded. Expected to die.

J L Webster, Columbus, Ga., trainman, right arm amputated and otherwise seriously injured.

James Kingar, Greenville, S. M. Sykeman and W R Wilson, Atlanta, painfully bruised.

Misses Mary and Nannie Erwin and Willie Erwin, of Ashville, bruised.

Philip Black, (negro) brakeman of freight train, concussion of the brain. Very serious.

Elected Officers.

By Associated Press.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., October 20.—At to-day's session of the Baptist anniversaries of the state the ministers had their meeting. Rev. Jno. Love, Jr., of Germantown, delivered an address: Dr. Wayland, editor of the National Baptist, read an essay, and Rev. R M. Luther, of Philadelphia, preached a sermon. The officers elected were: President, E. W. Bliss, of Malvern; first vice president, J. E. Barry, Waverly; second vice president, T. J. Collins, Brady Bend; secretary, S. F. Forgeus Bellwood The anniversaries closed with a meeting of the Woman's Missionary society.

Perils of the Deep.

MELBOURNE, Oct. 20—The Colonial passenger steamer Cheviot has been wrecked at Port Philip. Many of the passengers and crew were drowned. The remainder have arrived at Melbourne. The Cheviot was an iron screw steamer, 764 tons register, and belonged to this port.

LONDON, Oct. 20.—The steamer Apapa collided with and sunk the German bark Plankeur off Beachy Head on Tuesday. Eleven persons were drowned and the captain of the bark has since died Only two of the crew of the bark survived.

Accident to a Fast Express.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., October 20.—Shortly before noon the fast express on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, composed of six coaches and going west, met with an accident twelve miles below this city in which twenty-six passengers were more or less injured. The accident was caused by a defective switch, over which the engine, baggage, express and mail cars passed unharmed, but the three middle coaches, all filled with passengers, were thrown from the track, two of which were turned completely over, one turning twice.

Following are a few of the sufferers:

O P Watson, Taylorsville, Ky., concussion of the brain and temporary paralysis.

Mrs Catharine Miller, New York city, head cut and spine badly injured. Mrs Miller will soon become a mother.

W F Hiscock, Kansas, clavicle fractured, head cut, and leg bruised.

Dr William Fowler, New York city, badly bruised about the spine and hip joint. A metal flask in his hip pocket imbedded itself in his thigh. The doctor's wife had a foot mashed and sustained painful bruises.

Otto Levi, peddlar, New York city, badly bruised and injured internally.

Marion Smith, United States pension agent, this city, right hip crushed and both legs bruised.

Two passengers, names unknown, had their backs broken.

Briefs.

WILLIAMSPORT, Oct. 20.—The Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania, composed of 300 delegates from presbyteries of the state, opened here this evening. Rev. C. E. Stewart, D. D., of Coleraine, preached the opening sermon on "Synodical Sustentation." Rev. E. Erskine, D. D., of Carlisle, was elected moderator.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., October 20.—Slabtown near New London has been surrounded by brush fires and the inhabitants were compelled to flee to places of safety. Rain this evening has extinguished the flames but thousands of dollars worth of valuable timber was destroyed.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., October 20.—The first re-union of the Bucktail Regiment belonging to the Pennsylvania Reserve, began here to day, with 105 survivors present. The men wore the historic bucktail in their hats, and carried in line a full-sized figure of a buck. The following officers were elected: President, General W. R. Hartshorn; Vice-Presidents, Col. A. C. Niles and Col. C. A. Irwin; secretary, A. H. Rauch. This evening a public meeting was held in the Court House, Mayor Jones presiding.

Edward II, king of England, was the first Prince of Wales. The title was first conferred in the Thirteenth century upon the infant son of Edward I, who was born at Caernarvon, while his father was fighting the Welsh. Edward agreed with the Welsh to give them a prince who was a native of their own country, and then nominated his own son to the dignity.

"I'm thinking of building me a house," said Jones to Smith last evening. "Good idea," said Smith; "how much money have you?" "About $3,000." "Three thousand dollars; well, that will build a very neat $2,200 house, with economy." P. S.—If you have ever built a house you will see the point.

AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION Proposed to the citizens of this Commonwealth for their approval or rejection by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Published by order of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, in pursuance of Article XVIII of the Constitution.

Joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the commonwealth:

SECTION 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment of the constitution of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:

AMENDMENT.

Strike out from section one of article eight, the four qualifications for voters which reads as follows:

"If twenty-two years of age or upwards, he shall have paid, within two years, a state or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months, and paid at least one month before the election," so that the section which reads as follows:

"Every male citizen, twenty one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections:

First. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

Second. He shall have resided in the state one year (or if, having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the state, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.

Third. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election

Fourth. If twenty two years of age or upwards, he shall have paid, within two years, a state or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months, and paid at least one month before the election,' shall be amended, so as to read as follows:

Every male citizen twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at the polling place of the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident and not elsewhere:

First. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least thirty days.

Second. He shall have resided in the state one year (or if, having previously been a qualified elector or native born citizen of the state, he shall have removed there rom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.

Third He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least thirty days immediately preceding the election. The legislature, at the session thereof, next after the adoption of this section, shall, and from time to time thereafter may, enact laws to properly enforce this provision.

Fourth. Every male citizen of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a citizen for thirty days and an inhabitant of this state one year next preceding an election, except at municipal elections, and for the last thirty days a resident of the election district in which he may offer his vote, shall be entitled to vote at such election in the election district of which he shall at the time be a resident and not elsewhere for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elected by the people: Provided, That in time of war no elector in the actual military service of the State or of the United States, in the army or navy thereof, shall be deprived of his vote by reason of his absence from such election district, and the legislature shall have power to provide the manner in which and the time and place at which such absent electors may vote, and for the return and canvass of their votes in the election district in which they respectively reside

Fifth. For the purpose of voting, no person shall be deemed to have gained or lost a residence by reason of his presence or absence while employed in the service of the United States or the State, nor while engaged in the navigation of the waters of the State or of the high seas, nor while a student of any college or seminary of learning, nor while kept at any almshouse or public institution, except the inmates of any home for disabled and indigent soldiers, who, for the purpose of voting, shall be deemed to reside in the election district where said home is located. Laws shall be made for ascertaining, by proper proofs, the citizens who shall be entitled to the right of suffrage hereby established.

—A new engine is being provided for the Buffalo Run railroad, the business being too extensive for the present supply. The new one will be devoted almost exclusively to the work of hauling ore trains, 260 tons of ore being required daily for the new furnace of the Collins Brothers.

A Hive of Industry.

During all the past Summer the Phoenix Planing Mill has been operated in the most lively possible manner, and the employes have been putting in as much time as they possibly could. The mill has supplied the lumber for about all the many houses which have been erected, and as the building season must soon end, to a great extent, our readers may well imagine that the rush is now at its height and during the next month work will be turned out at lightning speed. The necessity for planing mill work is yearly becoming more imperative. House carpenters, as a rule, nowadays, only put the framework together and it is all prepared for that purpose at the mill. The reason for this, doubtless, is because experience has proven that skilled mill employes prepare the material more accurately and with better finish than do the outside builders.

The Phoenix is supplied with steam heat, electric light, and every modern convenience, and although the days become short and cool, the interior of the building is kept thoroughly warm and darkness is made as bright as noon-day. Mr. Robert Cole superintends the planing mill work and it may well be imagined that the busy season has taxed his energies severely. Quite sensibly, however, he relinquished what he could not do and finds himself as fresh now as at the beginning of the season. For instance, he tried how it would go to work in his d afting rooms at the Bush House at night until 12 o'clock, in addition to all day work, and found that so much application was too much of good thing, so gave up night work except occasionally. Early and late, however, he is at his post at the mill and by care and push brings about the excellent results which have been a feature of the Phoenix for years past.

Cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Captain John Green, who is with the inspecting party now traversing the Pennsylvania railroad, accounts for the present scarcity of cars, in the following which is taken from the Altoona Times:

"We are doing all we can. That is the one thing that puzzles us greatly, and we would be glad to receive any suggestions. We can't find the cars. We do not know what becomes of them. We built 11,000 cars this year, and where in the world they have gone to we do not know. President Roberts is beginning to think that if we do not build any more cars they would not be so scarce. The simple fact is that the cars of our road are being used very largely on other lines. The gauge has been made uniform all over the country, and the cars drift to all points and are not returned. We used to receive ¾ of a cent per mile for the use of a car, and nothing for storage. In consequence cars are often side-tracked, and because people are too lazy to unload them there they stay. We propose to remedy this evil by the scheme which went into effect on the 1st of October, and we think it will not be long before all the railroads will adopt the plan.

"The price per mile has been reduced to ½ cent, and it is now intended that 15 cents per day will be charged for the use of cars standing on side tracks. We believe that cars will be unloaded promptly and that the scarcity will soon be relieved. People when they realize that they have to pay 15 cents a day for the use of cars will likely unload them as soon as possible."

—The Pennsylvania railroad company's voluntary relief fund has a membership of 31,000, and is rapidly increasing. The limit of time in which members may increase their insurance without a medical examination has been changed from six months to two years, enabling members too old or enfeebled to pass an examination to increase their insurance to the limit if desired. Formerly a member absent from duty on account of suspension or furlough was obliged to keep up payments or lose his benefits in case of disability. This has been changed to allow such members three months' time in which to return to duty without payment of contributions, and still remain in good standing in the fund.

—An exchange prints the following, which we heartily endorse: "A gadwump is a man who makes himself conspicuous at theatres by leaving his seat between acts and coming back when it is convenient for him to disturb the greatest number of people. There are city gadwumps and country gadwumps, and when they swarm together stage business might as well be suspended for all the pleasure it affords the audience." And it might have added that when the gadwump returns to his seat he trails the odor of bad whiskey or beer a dozen feet behind him, and a clove to him is as nothing when it is used to kill the smell.

—The reunion of the 148th regiment in this place promises to be an interesting affair. More than 300 invitations have been sent out to persons residing in this county and seventy to survivors of the company in the western part of the state. It is probably that a large proportion of these persons will be present. The reunion will begin on Thursday, the 27th, and be continued through Friday. Of course, the meeting of itself will be thoroughly enjoyable, and we hope the citizens are taking some steps to add to the pleasure of the occasion. The surviving members should be given a hearty and earnest reception. What could be more appropriate than to serve a public dinner to them either on Thursday or Friday?

Appropriate Resolutions.

This testimonial to the memory of a great and useful man was adopted by the Good Templar lodge of this place on Tuesday evening of last week. It was handed us by Dr. E. S. Dorworth for publication.

IN MEMORIAM.

BELLEFONTE LODGE, I. O. O. F.

God, in His Providence, has removed our beloved brother, John B. Finch, Right Worthy Grand Chief Templar, thus causing in our membership a void difficult to fill. Humbly we bow in submission to His will, believing that all things work together for good to them that love God.

Resolved, That while our loss is his gain, this Lodge cannot forget the sacrifice he made for humanity. And we not alone condole with his wife and child in their irreparable loss, but also with the people of the entire State who are so largely indebted to him for the good he has accomplished.

Resolved, That the influence and effort of heart and head given by our brother in his life will leave its impress hereafter. Though dead yet he speaketh; and in shedding tears of sorrow at our separation we rejoice in the fact that our beloved order will prosper the more because of his services and labors of love while with us.

Resolved, That, as from childhood to manhood and throughout his married life he was always a faithful member of our order, we place our hearts on the alter of affection and undying love to his memory, and record upon the minutes of Bellesonte Lodge, for our children's children, this heart felt memoriam.

God bless the memory of Brother Finch.

The Murder Trial.

The special term of court to be held in Lock Haven, to try the men charged with the brutal murder of Mr. and Mrs. Culvey, will begin on the 5th of December. The jurors for that court have been drawn. It is not believed that there will be any difficulty in empaneling a jury for the trial, because no criminating evidence has been made public, the suspicions attaching to the men on trial are based on circumstances of a vague character, and no one can have formed opinions regarding their guilt or innocence. All the known facts are—that a foul murder was committed, that these persons were lurking in the vicinity, and that their subsequent actions indicated guilt. It is almost definitely known that they were concerned in the highway robberies. Perhaps the proper authorities have stronger evidence. Inasmuch, however, as it is not certain that the guilty parties have been arrested, continued watchfulness for the real criminals is necessary.

—The Williamsburg correspondent of the Altoona Times records that another accident has been added to the long list of casualties from boys jumping on and off moving trains. On Wednesday afternoon, just as the Williamsburg train moved away from the station at the Mines to do some shifting, a boy named William McMullin jumped upon the tender of the locomotive to ride up to the ore washers. He was not observed by the engineer, and remained there until the engine had gone about fifty yards, when he jumped from the moving locomotive and was thrown some distance. In falling he struck the ballast and broke and crushed his nose in a horrible manner, besides being otherwise badly bruised. It was fortunate in falling that he rolled from instead of toward the track; else we would have been called upon to chronicle a more serious, if not fatal accident.

Letter List.

Following is a complete list of the letters remaining uncalled for in the postoffice at Bellefonte, Centre county, Penn'a, October 17, 1887:

Geo. A. Barrett, Frank Chromis, John Fortney-2, John Gormley, J. A. Grove, Sidney S. Kohler, John Kerance, Mrs. Margaret Kane, John H. Keller, Annie C. Noll, James Raymond, Levi Shuls, Myrtle Williams.

Persons inquiring for letters named in the above list will please say advertised.

JAS. H. DOBBINS, P. M.

—Elizabeth, the ten-year-old daughter of Mr. Albert Snyder, living in East Taylor township, Cambria county, was burned to death on Wednesday evening of this week. She and her younger sister were alone in the house. Lizzie was washing a lamp near the stove, when the oil caught fire and the lamp exploded, throwing the burning contents all over her. Her clothing was burned off and even her beautiful hair burned. She lived only a few minutes.

—An ingenious gentleman who has no fondness for hard work is traveling through Fulton county selling "a valuable preparation" warranted to polish tinware. It is simply wood ashes which he begs at the farm houses along his route. All he does is to sift it and put it in tin boxes.

After the Wedding.

The DAILY NEWS, on Wednesday, had the pleasure of describing the marriage of Mr. Cyril Schell, of Tyrone, to Miss Kate McLaughlin, of this place, which occurred in the morning of that day. That description extended as far as their departure on the 10.35 a. m. train. The Tyrone Herald, of Thursday, continues as follows:

"The happy couple arrived in Tyrone at noon yesterday and at once proceeded to the residence of the groom's parents on North Main street, where an elegant dinner was served and many good wishes and congratulations extended to the young husband and wife.

"In the evening Sheridan band tendered them a compliment of a serenade and still later the party repaired to the photo-copying house of Miller Brothers where about twenty couples of the groom's friends were gathered, and to the music of Snyder's orchestra, of Altoona the fleeting hours were passed in tripping the light fantastic.

"Mr. and Mrs. Schell are to-day comfortably settled in their own home in a house which the groom had already prepared on North Logan street."

Fatal Accident.

From the Johnstown Tribune of Thursday: "A very sad accident occurred at Rockwood this morning which may result in the death of the 19-year-old son of Pythian Cobaugh, engineer of locomotive No. 307 of the S. G. C. Branch. While attempting to make a coupling between a twenty-eight foot gondola, loaded with thirty foot iron rails, and a box car the ends of the projecting rails caught him on the top of the head, tearing the scalp off and cracking his skull. The rail ends held his head against the box car like a vise, and with so much force as to bend an iron rung of the ladder of the box car. He was carried to his home in an unconscious condition and medical aid summoned. At noon he regained consciousness, was able to talk and partook of some broth and some easily masticated food. His recovery is extremely doubtful. He was employed by the B. & O. Railroad Company as night hostler in the Company's round house at Rockwood, and is a member of the B. & O Relief Association.

A Good Deed.

Someone who signs himself "Wayside" writes historical reminiscences and other interesting incidents for the Altoona Tribune. In a recent copy of that paper appeared an account of a good deed done more than a score of years ago in Harrisburg by Governor Curtin. The Governor met an editor on the street of the Capital, whom he knew to be a man of ability, but who had been reduced by dissipation to extreme poverty. The Governor asked the individual who had sunk so low if he could not once again act the part of a man, and the answer was that he would try. Then the two went to a clothing store and the editor was supplied with a new suit. The Governor paid the man's board at a hotel until he obtained a position. Since that day the man has not drank a drop. He has been reunited to his wife and family from whom his evil course had parted him. The editor and his family are now well and happy. No names are given by "Wayside." If the story is true, the good results which the Governor's kindness and generosity accomplished will be a source of more gratification to him than all his career as a statesman.

Centre Among the Best.

At the recent convention of the W. C. T. U., in Lewisburg, Mrs. J. W. Stevenson gave a report relating to the part that had been taken by the several unions of the State in the different departments of work. We notice that Centre county figures among the best.

For well organized, thorough as well as plainly written reports, Centre stands at the head, followed closely by Chester, Bucks, Butler, Mifflin, Mercer and Armstrong.

For amount of money expended for literature for free distribution, Philadelphia county leads, Centre next.

In Union Signal work the result is the same--Philadelphia first, Centre second.

Mrs. Stevenson said: "I was unable to decide the best reports of personal work done by the county superintendents. So many have done excellently. Mrs. Bird's of Bradford county and Mrs. Grays of Centre county are among the best."

—We are told, says the Centre Reporter, that the keepers of bars in Philipsburg, this county, recently agreed to keep an account of the income at that place for liquors sold, during one month and that the sum total showed the amount thus spent footed up $1,500. This is a handsome sum of money to drop in that way in a town of 3,000 population. Philipsburg is a bright town, and being in a bituminous coal centre, has a large mining population within a circle of ten miles, which seeks that town for a trading point, hence much of the money spent for liquor comes from the miners.

—The Commissioners of Warren Co., have discovered that hundreds of couples have been married, in the past few years, in an old house on the western border of the county, under the impression that they were being married in Ohio, and escaping the license law. They find the house is in Pennsylvania, and insist that all the marrying ought to be done over again, to give the matches a legal status.

Literary Exercises.

The opening literary exercise of Friday afternoon in the Bellefonte High School was an essay by Marion Nivling, of class '90, on "Joan of Arc." It showed diligent research and bright thought. Following this was a humorous recitation by Florence Longacre, of class '90, entitled "Easter Morning." Herbert A. Loeb, '90, delivered a declamation on "Buttermilk's Little Gas Bill." It, too, was humorous. The bill in this instance was only $300,000. Charles A. Rowan, '90, continued his essay on "The Nile." The Nile is a long river and Charley sticks to it well. The title of a selection recited by Laura Hafer, '89, was "Courage." It was very creditably done. Lillie Smith, '90, did equally well in her essay entitled, "Babylon." "Farmers," a declamation, was given by Herbert Miller, '91. We are glad to know that Emma Everhart, '91, is a very hopeful young lady. In a recitation she advised all to "Hope on, Hope Ever." In an essay Annie Stott, '90, told about "Morocco," and Bernice Moore, '91, in what was perhaps the best effort of the afternoon, recited the "Moral Effects of Intemperance." The essay of Kline Woodring, '91, was on "Water." "Keeping his Word" was a pathetic recitation by Myra Holiday, '90. Jennie Lukenbach's, '89, essay on "Gold" was very valuable. Roy B. Mattern, '88, made his bow and declaimed about "Books," with numerous expressive gestures. Anna Macbride, '88, read an essay describing "An Afternoon in Central Park." Like the park, it was full of excellent things. "Truth and Honor" was the theme of a recitation by Rebie Garman, '90. Ed. P. Butts, '88, read an essay on an interesting subject, "Tobacco." It was an excellent production. "Somebody's Mother" was the selection which Emmma Herkimer, '88, recited and Lee B. Woodcock, '88, changed afternoon into "Morning" by declaiming on the latter subject.

An Extension for the Powels.

The creditors of Robert Hare Powel & Co. and Robert Hare Powel's Sons & Co. met Thursday afternoon in the offices of the firms, at No. 419 Walnut St., Phila., and listened to a statement of the affairs of the embarrassed concern. Lawyer W. W. Wiltbank, counsel for the firms, showed that the assets were over $4,600,000, with direct liabilities of less than $1,500,000 and indirect liabilities of $250,000. The indirect liabilities consist of paper which bears the endorsement of the Powel firms, and which will probably be paid in part. On behalf of the Powels it was proposed to the creditors that an extension be granted to the firms, through which the bondholders would be assured of payment in five years with interest at 6 per cent., and the unsecured creditors would be paid in instalments in ten years with interest at 5 per cent. The creditors decided to accept this proposition with any modification which might be suggested by a committee chosen from among them by the officers of the meeting. A resolution was unanimously adopted requesting that the new blast furnace at Saxton be put in operation at once. Gen. John Patton, of Clearfield, presided at the meeting; R. C. Knight acted as vice president, and the secretaries were Samuel T. Brown, of Huntingdon, and W. P. Duncan, of this county. A large number of the creditors were present, and a most kindly feeling was manifested toward the embarrassed firms.

DON'T

let that cold of yours run on. You think it is a light thing. But it may run into catarrh. Or into pneumonia. Or consumption.

Catarrh is disgusting. Pneumonia is dangerous. Consumption is death itself.

The breathing apparatus must be kept healthy and clear of all obstructions and offensive matter. Otherwise there is trouble ahead.

All the diseases of these parts, head nose, throat, bronchical tubes and lungs, can be delightfully and entirely cured by the use of Boschee's German Syrup. If you don't know this already, thousands and thousands of people can tell you. They have been cured by it, and "know how it is themselves." Bottle only 75 cents. Ask your druggist.

—The Centre County Times records a somewhat thrilling accident which occurred on circus day—one week ago Friday—on the pike near Valentine's forge. Misses Maggie Rishel and Beulah Brisbin were driving in that direction, when their vehicle went over the bank into the blue spring. The ladies sank twice before they were rescued and narrowly escaped drowning. Miss Rishel remained all night at Mrs. Butts' boarding house.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after testing its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human sufferings, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full direction for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. 1911yeow

—Alas! no more doth tutti-frutti cream attract the Bellefonte girl;
She passeth it without e'en a look and with a scornful curl
Of her red lips. But in the depths of her bright, laughing eye
There comes a look of deep concern and close she draweth nigh
Unto her lover. Then she whispers in words so low and sweet;
"Oh, Algernon; did you ask me what I would have to eat?
Algernon, darling, hold me tight; a chill is in the air—
The stars look down so bold and bright as if they didn't care.
There's one big star that winks at me. Let's go inside—oh, my!—
Of this oyster restaurant and get a lovely fry!"

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

—Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., was at Spruce Creek, Huntingdon county, on Sunday, to officiate at the reopening of a Methodist church. It is not often that the Doctor is away from home on Sunday, as he does not believe in absenting himself from his own congregation. As a consequence, he declines about nineteen-twentieths of such requests that come to him, as he receives an average of one each week.

—Rev. J. A. Woodcock will erect two handsome little cottages on the rear part of his lot, on Lamb street. It is his intien to put in all the modern conveniences and rent them for a moderate sum. This will be new, novel and very pleasant in Bellefonte, for as a rule the houses are poorly constructed and bring as much rent, per annum, as the original cost amounted to.

—A somewhat peculiar story is told regarding the Bucktail Regiment which went to Williamsport on Thursday morning. While at one of the small stations not far from Bellefonte a large-sized and very handsome buck came running out of the woods and looked at the train. The members of the regiment gave a loud shout and the buck ran into the woods again.

I had Stone in the Bladder and Gravel in the Kidneys. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy disintegrated the stone and delivered me from it. I am now well. I should long ago have been six feet under the sod if I had not taken Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.—D. D. Hoag, Lebanon Springs, N. Y. Price $1. Send 2-cent stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout. N. Y., for his book on Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders. Mention this paper. 1940 4t

—An account of the murder of Mrs. Thomas Stanley, at Tunnel Hill, Cambria county, was given in this paper on Thursday. The coroner's jury gave the following verdict in reference to the way her death occurred: "Mrs. Stanley met her death by a gunshot wound received at the hands of Thomas Stanley, her husband, an the afternoon of October 18, 1887."

—A committee of the Fifty-seventh Pennsylvania Regiment Monday located the site for a monument at Gettysburg on the Emmittsburg road, in front of the Sherfy building. This Regiment took one hundred and eighty-seven men into the charge made there by part of the Third Corps, and lost one hundred and fifteen in killed, wounded and missing.

—The Pennsylvania railroad company is building a reservoir in the "Kettle" divide, at an elevation of 500 feet above the city of Altoona, which is to have thirty acres of water surface and will hold 180,000,000 gallons. It will be larger than any of the lakes that supply the New York city, and when completed will involve an outlay close upon $200,000.

—In Tyrone about 700 children attend the public schools, all but about fifty of whom are very regular in their attendance. There are only twelve habitual truants and as the policemen threaten to arrest any members of the last-mentioned class whom they may find it is believed that ere long there will not be a truant pupil.

—The autumn change of schedule went into effect on the Buffalo Run Railroad on Monday of last week. The train heretofore leaving at 6.10 a. m. now leaves at 6.30. The first train arrives at 9.14 instead of 9. The afternoon train leaves seventy minutes earlier—at 3.30 p. m.—and arrives 41 minutes earlier, or at 6.19.

—Burglars entered Presiding Elder Leidy's home, in Tyrone, on Saturday night, but took nothing except a pair of gold spectacles which they left in the yard. They made a thorough overhauling of everything in the house, but did not seem to find any great quantity of those treasures which thieves are supposed to break into the house for and steal.

ANNIVERSARY ECHOES.

A VERY PROFITABLE OCCASION IN THE METHODIST CHURCH ON SUNDAY EVENING.

We think it not too much to say that the seventeenth anniversary of the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A., held on Sunday evening in the Methodist church, was the most successful in its history. The success lies in the fact that the exercises were exceedingly pleasant, entertaining and edifying and the results are promising in a high degree. Everyone who attended was delighted with what was seen and heard and although the services were two hours in length and the church quite warm not a feeling of weariness was experienced.

The church was packed with an immense concourse of expectant people. The Methodist church is often crowded to the very doors, but never has its capacity been tested to a greater extent than on this occasion. There is an enthusiasm in large audiences which was felt at this time and everything combined to encourage and increase it. A large male choir had prepared several pieces of music which were rendered admirably. The voices were evenly balanced, blended with rich effect, and the result was to strike a responsive chord in the ear of each listener which was mutually edifying and insipring.

In the pulpit were the ministers of the town. The recently-elected President, D. M. Lieb, announced the exercises, Rev. Chas. T. Steck announcing the opening hymn, "Coronation," and reading an appropriate selection from the Psalms, and Rev. J. A. Woodcock offering prayer.

Rev. Geo. S. Chambers, pastor of Pine Street Presbyterian church, Harrisburg, delivered a clean-cut, bright and thoughtful address on the relation of the church to the Association. He told why the church should encourage the specific work for young men by young men. They need salvation, they are worthy of it and it can best be done by the social influences of such association. The church needs the young men, and they can be trained and developed in the Association in a way which is impossible in the church itself. The rule is invariable that the one who engages most actively in Association work is most prominent in church effort.

Gov. James A. Beaver was announced to introduce the last and principal speaker, Mr. W. R. Davenport, of Erie. The Governor accompanied his introduction with several thoughts which he believed would form a foundation upon which the speaker would build. He sought to enforce the fact that the old maxion, "A pound of prevention is worth a pound of cure," should be brought to bear in our treatment of those growing up around us. Millions of dollars are spent for penitentiaries and jails to cure hardened criminals which might much better be spent in these agencies which tend to prevent crime. He spoke of Mr. Davenport as the head of a great car building firm, who could spare time to come here to talk to business men, and made public that Mr. Davenport is now shaping his business affairs so as to permit him to make such visits more frequently.

Mr. Davenport is a gentleman of large, capacious figure, pleasing countenance and quick, business-like address. His pointed references and clear-cut expressions were often humorous and always telling. He believes very earnestly that what the Bellefonte Association wants is the proper tools with which to do the work. He had visited the Association in its rooms and was not pleased with the mechanical part of it. His idea of an Association building is a handsome structure used from the ground floor up to the turrets for Association purposes. He appealed to the fact that this community has already become famous and widely-known for the men it has reared, and intimated that Bellefonte's past prestige and natural advantages need only these safeguards to continue to rear men who will be useful to the State at large The fact that the coummunity is experiencing a business boom offers an additional reason. Conditions are much changed since the manufacturer employed only a limited number of men whom he could keep around him as members of his family. Now thousands are employed by one man and are known only by their numbers. A home must be provided for them and it must be as handsome and attractive as any. A half million dollars is not too much to spend in this manner if the young men can be saved. He related instances of the vast good the association is doing. His address was strong and convincing, and his language was so adroitly chosen that even those who may be radically opposed to his views could not but listen with pleasure.

The congregation arose and sang the doxology, Rev. George Chambers dismissing them with the benediction.

—On Thursday evening, about 8 o'clock, John Vogt, nephew of William Vogt, proprietor of a clothing store in Tyrone, discovered a man stealing a bundle of about ten overcoats from the rear part of the store. He grabbed the bundle and succeeded in retaining eight of the coats, the man fleeing away with the others. He was pursued through the darkness by quite a large number of men and boys and at length, when hard pressed, leaped into the Juniata river and was drowned. Two tramps say that his name is William A. Stechley and that his home is in Pottstown. They had traveled to Tyrone together and they say Stechley was going to Pittsburg to work.

A "Free Lance" from the State College

The young men who are students at the State College (and perhaps the young ladies also) understand thoroughly the art of editing and publishing a handsome, tasteful and interesting magazine. We have No. 4 of Vol. 1—the October number—of The Free Lance. It is a beauty and we read all of its contents, including some of the advertisements. We remember to have seen only two typographical errors. The first is in an editorial, Galatea being spelled Galala. The second is in Prof. W. A. Buckhout's fine article on "The Bear Meadows. He is made to say that "lakes and boys are not common features in the landscape of Pennsylvania." "Boys" should read bogs. The articles include a strong one on "Prohibition."

The following, which we take from an editorial, shows the prosperity of the college: "The old building has been much improved in its outward appearance, and the electric spark now courses its way through the halls and rooms on the latest mission assigned it by the genius of man. The foundations for the new chemical and physical laboratory and the botanical conservatory are completed, and preparations for the erection of the superstructures are being made rapidly. The great increase in the number of students is also an auspicious fact. Many of them, too, come from sections (of this State) which have heretofore been inimical to the college, but which have of late shown a more relenting spirit."

It gives us much pleasure to read the local—that Will "Brew is putting on (h)airs this term."

Two entertainments are announced—one a lecture by Rev. Madison C. Peters on "How to Make Things Go!" It will be delivered in the chapel on Friday evening Nov. 18. The Pennsylvania State College Orchestra will give an instrumental concert on Thanksgiving evening, November 24.

Glad to See and Hear Him.

It was indeed pleasure to the members of the Episcopal church to welcome again for an all too brief visit the rector who labored so faithfully among them for nine years, in the person of Rev. John Hewitt of Fremont, Nebraska. He delivered two sermons in the church on Sunday and read a large part of both morning and evening services, his clear and expressive voice bringing out the matchless beauty of the Episcopal service and reviving many tender and pleasant memories. Large congregations listened to him on each occasion and his sermons were gems of beauty and grace, coupled with the power and simplicity of the Gospel message.

Nor was the pleasure of welcoming him confined to the church. His power and influence, when here, permeated all the relations the people of Bellefonte bear to one another as citizens and friends. Hence, almost all know him and were glad to join in the welcome to which he responded in such a gracious and courtly manner. He departed on Tuesday morning for Philadelphia.

Every message which shall come to give proof of his continued usefulness to the Church in the remote part of the country in which he is laboring will be hailed with much pleasure by friends here.

A Prosperous Church.

Everyone in Bellefonte will rejoice with St. John's Episcopal church here in the prosperity which has been attending it of late. Blessings of a material character have been coming to it nemerously. Only recently the decorations have been put on its interior which render it one of the handsomest in the State. The chancel rail, ornate and costly, is a recent addition and the memorial pulpit which corresponds with it so perfectly was put in only a few weeks ago. On Sunday the basement, or Sunday-school room was opened for the first time since the improvements were made to it and it is now as beautiful and cheerful as fresh paint can contribute to that result, and the disagreeable dampness which was an objection to some has been removed. To add to these very important improvements, the small organ heretofore used by the school has been substituted by a beautiful and powerful new organ. The giver of this last mentioned gift is thus far unknown. May the good work inaugurated proceed to even a greater degree in the future. The great cause which invokes this generosity is worthy the most prodigal liberality, and the givers shall themselves be made rich.

Another Church Dedication.

Church erection and church improvement appears to be making exceedingly rapid progress in this county and scarcely a week passes that does not witness the completion of a new church enterprise in some part of it. The announcement is now made that the Methodist church in Boalsburg will be reopened next Sunday. There will be a service at 10 o'clock a. m. and also one in the evening. Rev. Mr. Elliot, of Birmingham, will preach the sermon. The pastor of the church is Rev. Samuel Ham.

Our informant asks us to invite Methodists from all parts of the county to attend these services.

A WOMAN BADLY WOUNDED.

THE VERY SERIOUS AFFAIR WHICH OCCURRED ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

Our borough is fortunately almost exempt from any very serious crimes—at least, from such as become generally known, though we suppose there is as much wickedness of a certain character here as elsewhere. It is noticed that Saturday night is the time when crimes are of most frequent occurrence. Probably it is because more whiskey flows then than at other times.

Since Hugh Riddle was stabbed no revolting crime has disturbed the peace of the town until last Saturday night, when an affray occurred on Smith street in this place which resulted in the very serious—probably fatal wounding of Mrs. John Bryan. Two young men are implicated in the affair—to what extent may not be certainly known until the trial at the November sessions.

The place of the crime is the house occupied by John Bryan and wife at No. 23 West Smith street—sometimes called Thomas street. The time was a few minutes before 10 o'clock. We went on Monday to ask Edward Poorman, one of the young men, to give us his account of the affair, but J. L. Spangler, one of his lawyers, said that it was advisable for him not to talk. His other counsel, John G. Love, Esq., gave us Poorman's version of the occurrence as follows:

Edward Poorman and Harvey Lauver, or Stratton, as he is sometimes called, were passing along Smith street about 10 o'clock that night. Both of them had been drinking. Poorman entered John Bryan's room which is on the basement floor of No. 23. Mrs. Bryan was there alone. Some words passed between them when Poorman took hold of Mrs. Bryan roughly. She told him to desist. About this time Stratton also entered. She threatened to shoot them and went to an organette and opened it, presumably to take out a revolver. Then the men left and when about fifty yards from the house they heard the report of a revolver.

On Saturday night, when it was feared that Mrs. Bryan would not live until morning, she made some statements to the police who were present. On Sunday morning she also made a statement to District Attorney Meyer, which differs from the one told by Poorman. She relates that Poorman entered her room and took hold of her. Although she resisted him he forced her onto a lounge. Then Stratton entered and she called to him—"For God's sake take this man away!" He did not attempt to do so, but she managed to reach the organette from which she took a large 38-calibre revolver. Poorman grasped it at the same time, and in the struggle it was discharged. The bullet wounded the middle finger and the thumb of her right hand and then entered the abdomen just above the pelvis, making a wound straight through to the vicinity of the backbone, near which it must be lodged. The wound was probed part way by Dr. Miles Kirk. No attempt has been made to extract the bullet.

A man named Fulton lives overhead who heard the struggle below and also the report of the revolver. As soon as the woman was shot she ran into the house of Mr. William Baney, next door, and exclaimed either that she had been shot or that she shot herself.

Anyone who knows the nature of a wound almost through the body at such a spot will be surprised that the woman is still alive. It was feared that she would not live until morning. She is, however, still living.

Edward Poorman is only about 19 years of age. He belongs to an excellent family, and his father, who works at the planing mill here, is deeply grieved and mortified that his son should be concerned in such a crime. Harvey Lauver, or Stratton, is 27 years of age. Both live at Coleville.

The men were arrested on Saturday night and placed in jail. This morning they were released on bail.

A Kind Act Remembered.

Constable Robert C. Clair, of Mill Hall, says the Lock Haven Express, received a letter a few days ago from an attorney at Marblehead Mass., informing him that a man named Thomas H. Hinion, of that place, had died in the month of August and had bequeathed to Mr. Clair all his property which is estimated to be worth $18,000. Mr. Clair was interviewed this morning by a representative of the Express to whom he stated that he had not heard from Hinion for more than fifteen years. During the war Clair was on reserve picket duty the night after the battle at Hatchers Run, Virginia. Near the picket line lay a wounded soldier in terrible agony, whose moans and calls for water were more than Clair could stand. He ventured to crawl out to the sufferer and dragged him inside the line, where he was cared for and sent to the hospital. The wounded soldier was Thomas H. Hinion the man who lately died and who out of gratitude bequeathed his property to the man who saved his life. Hinion, the attorney writes, was a batchelor, and has no relatives in the United States.

—Stewart Johnston, of Baker's Mines, visited Huntingdon on Tuesday and presented Colonel Lindsay, of the News, with a turnip that weighs five pounds and three ounces, and that measures twenty-six inches across the hips.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. James Milliken journeyed to Tyrone on Friday evening in the 5 o'clock train.

Miss Leona F. Maitland went to Williamsport Wednesday morning to spend a few days.

Mr. Kerr, the advance representative for Field Minstrel Company, spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Mr. W. S. Kinyon, of Sunbury, is the guest of his uncle, W. D. Maitland, on Linn street, in this place.

Miss Hilton, daughter of Major Hilton, of Washington City, is a guest at the home of Mr. John P. Harris.

Mrs. C. N. Owen and daughter, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., are guests at the home of Rev. J. A. Woodcock.

Jacob Valentine, Jr., son of Mr. Jacob Valentine, of High street, has returned home after spending about six months in Virginia.

Hon. Thomas H. Murray, of Clearfield, lectured in the Court House in Williamsport on Monday evening on "Little Things."

George Wolf, editor of the West Branch Beobachter, a German weekly paper published in Williamsport, died on Saturday morning.

Mr. Chas. Nau went away on Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock to unite with the Norman Opera Company and make a tour of the States.

Walter W. Bayard came before the public on Thursday as the publisher of an important looking paper named the Bellefonte Labor News.

Messrs. Jack Ager and Charles McHugh, of Lock Haven, spent Sunday very pleasantly at the home of Mr. Nicholas Bauer in this place.

Mr. W. E. Burchfield and family, of Philipsburg, have been visiting at the home of Mr. S. T. Shugert, and departed Saturday morning for their home.

Mayor John A. Wolf, of Philipsburg, is a member of the committee to arrange for the erection of a monument to the memory of the Bucktail regiment.

Ex-Gov. Curtin and Adjt General Hastings assisted in the unveiling of the equestrian statue of Gen. Geo. S. Meade, in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, on Tuesday.

Hon. Henry W. Williams, of Tioga county, Republican candidate for judge of the Supreme court, found time to pay a brief visit to the city of Altoona, on Thursday.

Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., pastor of the Methodist church, has returned from Spruce Creek, where he assisted at the reopening of a Methodist church. It was an interesting and successful event.

Rev. W. H. H. Snyder, pastor of the Reformed church, and C. M. Bauer, Esq., arrived on the morning train from Lemont Wednesday. They were returning from Synod which was held in Sunbury.

Rev. John Hewitt, of Fremont, Neb., arrived in Bellefonte on Friday evening at 8:45 o'clock. He comes East as a representative of the church in Northern Nebraska at a convention to assemble in Philadelphia this week.

Mr. McCay, of Baltimore, after spending several weeks here in the employ of the Electric Light Company, departed on Friday. He will be succeeded by Mr. Cooper, of Birmingham, who comes here to remain permanently.

Mrs. Holliday, of this place, has gone to Philipsburg again to visit her friends. She was benefited so much physically by her recent visit in that place that she was induced to repeat it, we hope with corresponding improvement.

Mr. Jacob Light, formerly an employe of Gerberich, Hale & Co's mill in this place, spent several months recently in similar employment in Indiana. He has returned to Centre county to remain. We were glad to see him as he is a very pleasant young gentleman.

Mr. Jacob Light, who recently arrived from the State of Indiana, where he spent all the past Summer, remained a few days with friends here, and then departed on Monday afternoon for his parent's home in Berks county, where he expects to stay during the Winter.

Miss Chestie Krape, of this place, expects to start to California on Monday, the 31st of this month. She will leave on the 5 o'clock train in the afternoon. The many friends of this talented young lady will regret that she is going so far away and will wish her all possible good fortune.

Miss Lily Barrett, one of the accomplished and agreeable young ladies who preside over the Bellefonte Telephone Exchange, is visiting friends in Philadelphia. Miss Mattern, the other fair operator, was ill on Monday, which kept Mr. Charles Noll, the night operator, on double duty.

Mr. J. C. Brachbill expected to depart Wednesday at 5 o'clock p. m. for Chicago, where he will accept a position in the employ of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. We expressed surprise that Cal. should give up the furniture business in which he seems to be so successful, but he says the financial prospects of his new duties are sufficient to induce him to make the change.

—According to arrangements now being made, the Catholics of Allegheny county will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the Pope to the priesthood in a royal manner. There will be a parade of the Catholic societies during the day and an entertainment at night.

Worth $8,000,000.

John Dubois, who succeeded his uncle to the possession of the vast Dubois estate, is described as "a tall, ungainly young man." He is worth $8,000,000. He owns 24,000 acres of land in Clearfield county alone. He is 26 years old and is not married. He don't drink and don't smoke. He goes to bed early and gets up early and is very sensible. We hope he will remain so; that he will marry some real lovely Bellefonte young lady and that he and his bride will use their money wisely and usefully.

—A rhyme in this paper on Saturday recorded a young lady's refusal to eat ice cream and her request of her young man for an oyster fry. A reader sends us the sequel, containing the young man's reply, as follows:

> Then Algernon, as they walk on with > heads held very high,
> Says to his dear Matilda Jane—"I > would fain 'set op' that fry;
> But circumstances alter cases, you know,
> most every time;
> And I would like to be excused as > I only have a dime."

—The folks in Philipsburg are all mixed because the law compels them to vote for or in opposition to gas with which to light the streets, when they want electric light. It appears that when the law was made electric light was unknown, and the lawyers say that a vote in favor of gas will permit them to use any sort of light. The tickets to be used in the election must read for or against gas. It is very mysterious, but the people will probably vote their gas tickets, and trust to the law which can make gas mean electric light.

—By an act of Legislature of this Commonwealth, approved by the Governor on the 24th of May last, the cities and boroughs of this State are given the power to tax or license foreign dealers in merchandise, or their agents, having no permanent place of business in such city or borough, but temporarily engaged therein in selling merchandise at wholesale or retail, to an amount not exceeding the local taxes or licenses imposed on resident merchants engaged in like line of business.

—Mrs. John Bryan, the woman who was wounded so seriously in the affair of last Saturday night, was feeling better on Tuesday. The possibility of her recovery seems to be changing into a probability. There are no new developments. Of course, there are all sorts of rumors, but they can have no weight. The truth is, the affair is one of the most serious character, and the action of the young men has placed them in a situation the gravity of which they should appreciate to its fullest extent.

—Commissioner Jonas McClintock, of Somerset county, met with a serious and it is feared fatal accident on Saturday afternoon, the 15th. He had built a new dwelling house on his property in Addison township, that county, and was engaged in tearing down the old house, when he fell from the second floor of the building through to the cellar, alighting on a stone and sustaining very serious injuries. At latest reports his condition was thought to be critical.

—The delivery wagon used by the Messrs. Brockerhoff for their feed store has been on the road for several days, but we obtained our first view of it on Friday. It is the perfection of taste and beauty. The color is about the same as that of the bus for the Brockerhoff House—a rich cream. By the way, it is just the color for a flour wagon, as the particles of flour scattered over it will not be noticed.

—It is an interesting sight to see all the Williamsport school teachers together. They make a very intelligent body.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

Does it require all of your teachers to make one intelligent body? It is a much more interesting sight to see all the Bellefonte school teachers together, because they include fifteen or sixteen intelligent bodies.

—The members of the Woman's Relief Coaps will hold a festival in the hall of the G. A. R. Post at Milesburg on Friday and Saturday evenings, October 28 and 29. By order of the Secretary.

M. DRAUCHER.

DIED.

GEARY.—On the 15th instant, at Millheim, Anna Catherine Geary, daughter of Daniel and Ellen Geary, aged 13 years, 10 months and 20 days.

SHANNON.—On Wednesday, October 12, 1887, in Potter county, Lillie Shannon, of Moshannon, Centre county, Pa., aged 18 years, 4 months and 18 days.

Rev. J. Brunner Graham, pastor of the Snow Shoe M. E. church, who sends us the above notice, also adds that Miss Shannon died while away from home, which adds to the sadness of the event.

MARRIED.

WOOMER—WEAVER.—On the 25th of October, 1887, at Garman's Hotel, Bellefonte, Pa., by John B. Linn, Esq., Mr. Jeremiah Woomer, of Olivia, Blair county, Pa., and Miss Fannie Weaver, of the same place.
